

THIRTY-FIRST YEAR

LANCASTER, KY., THURSDAY AFTERNOON, JULY 8, 1920.

NUMBER 18.

EX-SERVICE MEN

Have Big Day At Stanford.

The Herald Sanford Post of the American Legion were guests last Monday of the Caswell Sautley Post at Stanford and all report a very happy and enjoyable day. All being loud in their praise of the courtesy extended them by the citizens of Stanford and the members of the Caswell Sautley Post in particular.

Practically every member of the local Post took advantage of the invitation and went over in autos. Commander Billy F. Miller being in charge, in the absence of Commander Virgil Kinnard who was unable to attend.

Upon reaching the city limits of Stanford a line of march was formed, headed by Scouts Roger Bourland and J. R. Haselden, Jr., then the Lancaster band followed by the colors carried by George Swinebroad representing the Army and guarded by Story Herron representing the Marines and Russell Sanford representing the Navy, followed by about seventy-five ex-service men from the Herald Sanford Post. They were given a hearty welcome by attorney W. H. W. Reynolds dressed as "Uncle Sam." Band concerts were given by the Lancaster Band and the Brotherhood Band.

The program was held at the Chautauqua tent where Judge Gregory of Louisville gave the principal address. A short address was made by Millie Miller and a reading by Miss Ruch of Stanford.

The races were pulled off on main street and proved quite interesting and at times exciting. Several of our local boys were right up in front. Mr. Thomas K. Price of this county winning the 100 yard dash over several excellent competitors.

A ball game closed the exercises for the day, finishing up with the fire works that evening.

Every member of Post to a man, express themselves as being highly entertained and say it was one of the biggest days they have spent since their return home from the service.

Ice Cream Supper.

The Ladies Aid Society of the Hubble Christian church will give an Ice Cream supper, Saturday night, June 10th. Everybody cordially invited.

Davis At Bryantsville.

Hon. George T. Davis, democratic candidate for Congress, will address the citizens of Garrard County at Bryantsville next Saturday afternoon, July 10th, at three o'clock. Ladies are especially invited.

Littrell.

Mr. James Littrell, aged 88 years, and one of the oldest and well known citizens of the county, died at his home on the Poor Ridge pike last Friday night, of infirmities incident to old age. He was a member of the Baptist church and the funeral services were conducted by his pastor, Rev. C. D. Strother, last Sunday afternoon, the burial taking place in the Lancaster cemetery.

Christian Church News.

The County Convention of the Christian Sunday Schools will be held at Pleasant Grove on July 16. An interesting program has been arranged and a large attendance is expected.

"Temptation, A Synonym for Opportunity" will be the subject of the sermon at the Christian church next Sunday morning. No evening services, except the Endeavor Meeting at 8:45, will be held. Instead, the members of the congregation will join in the Union services at the Presbyterian church.

Automobile Owners

Attention.

We are prepared now to take care of your automobile repair work on all cars.

If you want service and guaranteed satisfaction this is the place to come.

We are willing to stand behind any and all work turned out by us. If you are not satisfied we will refund your money or make the job right either you prefer.

Let us have a trial at something that some one else has failed to do to your satisfaction.

We are here to do as we say, and only ask a trial of you.

GOVERNOR COX

Nominated On 44th, Ballot.

ROOSEVELT HIS RUNNING MATE.

James M. Cox, three times governor of Ohio, was nominated for the Presidency early Wednesday morning by the Democratic national convention in the breakup of one of the most prolonged deadlocks in the history of national political parties.

It took forty-four ballots to make the choice and it was not until the thirty-eighth, when Attorney General Palmer withdrew from the race, that he long succession of roll calls showed any definite trend.

In the turnover of the Palmer delegates, Cox gained the advantage over William G. McAdoo, his rival for the place since early in the balloting and that advantage never was lost.

JAMES M. COX, OHIO

Supporters of Governor Cox won a way to the nomination of persistent battling at the McAdoo and Palmer forces in many states throughout a long series of shiftings and rallies which left now one and then another of the candidates in the lead.

Once A Printer's Devil.

James Middleton Cox was three times Governor of Ohio—an honor enjoyed by only one other Ohioan, Rutherford B. Hayes.

Born on a farm, educated in the public schools, a printer's devil, a school teacher, a newspaper reporter, a private secretary to a Congressman, owner, manager and proprietor of two newspapers, member of Congress for three years and three times Governor of his State is his record to date.

Business success paralleled his political achievements and through his own efforts Mr. Cox has amassed a fortune. He became the leader of the Democratic party in Ohio in 1912 when he was nominated for Governor. As one who had brought radical changes in the State Constitution, he took the field in its behalf. His first term as Governor was devoted chiefly to forwarding the enactment of laws to put the new State Constitution into effect.

But Ohio evidently was not prepared to assimilate all the new laws, for Mr. Cox was defeated for re-election. But his party renominated him in 1916 and he was re-elected for a third term in 1918, being the only Democrat to win in Ohio.

Legislation for which Mr. Cox is best known includes a model workmen's compensation law and a child labor law which have been extensively copied by other States. Educators of the country say the Ohio school code, enacted under Mr. Cox's direction, will live as a monument to his achievements.

Mr. Cox was born in Butler county, Ohio, in 1870. He attended district school and held his first position as a teacher of the school in which he took his first lessons. He spent evenings and holidays in a printing office. In a few years he received his first assignment on the editorial staff of the Cincinnati Enquirer.

After ten years with the Enquirer he went to Washington as a private secretary to Congressman Paul Sorg, Ohio. At the close of this service he purchased the Dayton Daily News, borrowing most of the money to pay for it. Later he purchased the Springfield Daily News. He was first elected to Congress in 1908.

He recently purchased the farm near Jacksonburg on which he was born, and has made it a modern farm home, where he expects to live on retirement from public life. He is married and has four children.

Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, was chosen by acclamation by the convention as the party's candidate for Vice President.

Mr. Roosevelt was selected after the names of seven other candidates had been presented to the delegates.

TELEGRAPH OFFICE

Needed Here And Can Be Gotten.

Lancaster is the only city of its size in the United States without a telegraph office. It is a reflection upon the business men of the community. It is however no fault of the citizens that it was removed. Several years ago the L. and N. R. R. Company and the Western Union had a controversy in the courts over the right of way, whereupon the L. and N. closed the office at the station. At the time no one was available for operator, consequently we have been compelled to use long distance telephone for messages.

Now is the time to request the Western Union to restore the office. Several citizens of Mt. Vernon have to restore the office at their town requested the Railroad Commission and have an engagement to meet them at Frankfort on Aug. 5.

Why don't our progressive citizens make an engagement with the Commission?

We have just about ten times as much business transacted here. With three banks, two loose leaf houses, two flouring mills, five or six shippers of live stock, three shippers of produce and many other enterprises we should have telegraphic communication with the rest of the world.

MORE CATALOGS

For Swinebroad, The Real Estate Man.

This office has just completed the issuing of several thousand catalogs for Swinebroad the Real Estate man, announcing his July Sales that he will conduct during the month. It also contains a long list of farms which he has for sale privately. These catalogs can be had for the asking. Just drop him a card and you will get one by return mail.

New Laundry Agency.

Mr. Paul Morrow has accepted the agency for the Madison Laundry and Dry Cleaning Company and has opened up his office at Ball's grocery.

He collects and delivers promptly, all laundry and guarantees his work to be of the best order. He will collect the laundry regularly every Monday morning and will appreciate the patronage of his friends.

Call Meeting.

Mayor John M. Duncan has called for a meeting of the taxpayers of the city of Lancaster, to meet with the City Council next Monday night at the county court room, to discuss the Electric Light question, which seems a very vital and important question at this time. A short term contract has been drawn and will be submitted to the Council soon and Mayor Duncan is anxious to have an expression from the taxpayers of the city, before it comes up before the Council for final action.

Broke Up Small Still.

Prohibition Enforcement Officer, H. R. Sautley went over to the Cartersville section in Garrard county Thursday and located a still not far from the county line. Assisted by Messrs M. C. Newland and W. H. W. Reynolds, of Stanford, he smashed it into smithereens and poured out about 100 gallons of the beer fruit. Mr. Sautley says that everything was in readiness for a good supply of booze for the glorious fourth. Nobody was seen around and as a consequence no arrests were made.—Danville Advocate.

Foley Reunion.

One of the most delightful affairs of the season was the Foley Reunion, given Sunday, June 29th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Mose Hutchins at Berea, in honor of Mr. Hutchins parents, Rev. and Mrs. P. E. Foley of Hackley, it being Mrs. Foley's 83 birthday.

At noon a delicious and bountiful dinner was served. In the afternoon pictures were taken of the entire crowd, as souvenirs of the happy occasion. Forty relatives were in attendance, and by all present the enjoyable day that was spent will long be remembered as one of the happiest events of their lives, and wish for "Grandma Foley" many more happy birthdays.

When it became apparent that "the powers that be" had made a decision, there was a scramble to get on the band wagon and make the selection unanimous.

SPLENDID

PROGRAM

Redpath Chautauqua Closed Last Night.

SIGNED FOR ANOTHER YEAR.

Last night brought to a close the Redpath Chautauqua, which held its first program here last Friday afternoon. The tent has been crowded at every one of the entertainments, many of which have been decidedly the best that has ever been given here, this is especially true of the platform orators, all of whom were of the highest type and proved most elevating and instructive.

It will be gratifying to its patrons to know that arrangements have been made to secure the return of the Chautauqua here next year. In all probability, Lancaster will be included in the "seven day" circuit which will insure even better attractions than we have had in the past.

Numerous pledges have already been made for tickets for next year and many guarantors have signed the contract to stand behind it financially.

The Platform In Brief.

These are the outstanding points of the National Democratic Platform as presented to the convention by the Resolutions Committee endorsed.

Makes the League of Nations the first issue; declares for ratification of the Versailles Treaty and league, without reservations which impair its "essential integrity," but does not oppose clarifying reservations.

Praises Administration's legislative record in peace and fighting record in war.

Condemns Republican Congress for treaty defeat, for failure to return the country to a peace status, for the high cost of living declared to be caused thereby, for its failure to revise the taxing systems and to enact laws curbing profiteers.

Opposes cash reward to soldiers for patriotism; but promises them land settlement and home-aid legislation, "utmost consideration" of disabled fighters, and "highest bounty" for dependents of war dead, but declares the heroic conduct of the American forces constitute a heritage, the worth of which can never be compensated from the Treasury.

Designates to labor and capital alike the right of organization and collective bargaining, but demands that each recognize the obligation to produce, when failure to produce puts in jeopardy the public welfare; opposes compulsory arbitration in private industry, but in Government service holds "right of people" above "right to strike."

Indorses Woman Suffrage amendment and urges Democratic Government to further ratification.

Recognizes need of acquisition of new sources of oil supply, and pledges action to secure American citizens same rights as those of other nations in obtaining interests in foreign countries.

Declares for private ownership of railroads, without Government subsidy; urges thorough test of Transportation Act of 1920, inferentially upholding anti-strike provision.

Demands revision of tax laws; reaffirms policy of tariff for revenue only; renews demand for national budget.

Stands on its record of benefits to agricultural interests and promises legislation promoting co-operative marketing of farm products.

Expresses sympathy "within the limits of international comity and usage" with Ireland's aspirants for self-government.

Perceives, as the fruits of a helping hand policy extended by this country, a Mexico gradually emerging from disorder and showing capability of maintaining peaceful government, and promises recognition to the new regime when it thoroughly shall have established its power of control and willingness to meet international obligations.

Sees duty of rendering every possible aid to Armenia in establishing government of her own. (No word on mandate)

Favors independence for Philippines, liberal homestead policy in Hawaii, territorial government for Porto Rico and further development of Alaska.

Does not mention prohibition.

HUSBAND

KILLS SELF

After Seriously Wounding Wife.

Tragedy Near Paint Lick.

Paint Lick and the surrounding community was severely shocked last Thursday morning when it became known that James Lawson, a prominent and well-to-do farmer living on the Walnut Meadows pike had instantly killed himself after seriously wounding his wife, to whom he was married about six months ago.

A .22 caliber rifle was the weapon used, two bullets being fired into his own body, causing instant death. The first bullet fired at Mrs. Lawson entered the body, penetrating the lung.

Should Mrs. Lawson recover she will owe her life to her 9-year-old son Marshall Bolton, a son by a former marriage, who, after his mother had escaped the home, having been shot, followed her almost a quarter of a mile away from their home, where she fell from the loss of blood, then went for aid, which was found at the farmhouse of "Billy" Jones, a half mile away. The child raised the alarm, after making his way to the farmhouse, and the unconscious body of his mother was soon lifted with tender hands and hurried to the hospital at Berea, where an operation was performed Thursday morning in an effort to save her life. The bullet had not been recovered.

After the escape of Mrs. Lawson, who, it is believed, was shot through the window of her home, after getting away from the house, Lawson turned the weapon upon himself and fired two shots in his left breast a few inches above the heart. It is believed he was in the yard, searching for his wife, and finding her gone, decided to kill himself. The body was found by a searching party about 2 o'clock on Thursday morning in a patch of weeds in the yard of his home. Lawson's body was found lying face upward with the rifle across his left arm. He was apparently not injured otherwise. This statement is made as the result of reports emanating from the Lawson household, and which are borne out to a certain extent. Mrs. Lawson has been in such a serious condition that she has been unable to give any version or account of the tragedy whatever.

At this writing she is reported better and has a fair chance of recovery.

W. A. DICKERSON

Enters Real Estate field With Swinebroad.

Swinebroad, the real estate man, could have looked the country over and he couldn't have found a better man to share his business with him than W. A. Dickerson, our ex-merchant and popular gentleman.

He has assumed charge of the local office, together with G. A. Swinebroad and the two gentlemen will make an excellent and wide awake team.

Baptist Church Notes.

The special program at the Baptist church last Sunday was a rare treat to a large audience in attendance. Everyone speaks of it as being one of the most beautiful and entertaining services they ever attended. Every child who took a part deserves a word of praise and commendation. Mrs. J. E. Dickerson, Miss Ada Rich and Mrs. Strother also deserve much credit for the splendid program arranged. We are also profoundly grateful to those who came from Buckeye and assisted in the service. Among their number were Minnie Francis Walker, who gave a fine recitation; Gretchen Hope Sanders, who charmed everyone with her sweet voice; and eight young ladies, who gave a flower drill which everyone says was one of the most beautiful drills they ever saw. We all left the church feeling awfully proud of the young ones, and in closer touch with the great Creator and Saviour.

Sunday is our quarterly communion day and the pastor will speak briefly on the subject; "The Misunderstood Baptists". The service will close at the usual time.

A singer has not yet been secured for the special revival services which begin Oct. 3rd.

C. D. Strother—pastor.

LOST—on the streets, last week, a black patent leather purse, some small change and cards. Please return to Margaret Elliott.

GOV. DAVIDSON

Holds Highest Chair In Oklahoma.

It is interesting news here to know that Hon. R. L. Davidson, a former Garrard county man, but who for several years has made his home in Oklahoma, has for the last week occupied the Governor's chair in that state, in the absence of Governor Robertson, who at present is in San Francisco, and Lieut. Governor Trapp is also out of the State.

By virtue of Mr. Davidson's position as president pro-tem of the senate, the governors mantle falls upon his shoulders.

Our good old Paint Lick friend, Mr. E. N. Todd, who has been from the state thirteen years has the following to say of his recent visit to the State House, where he called upon Governor Davidson:

Oklahoma City, Okla., July 2, 1921. The Central Record, Lancaster, Ky.

Dear Record:—

Today I went to the Governor's office to call on Oklahoma's chief executive, the Hon. R. L. Davidson. I thought your readers would be glad to know that Hon. Davidson is the present Governor of Oklahoma. Gov. Robertson is in San Francisco, Lieut. Gov. Trapp is in Kansas, so President Pro-tem of the Senate, R. L. Davidson is Governor. I said to him: "When we were in school together at Lancaster I did not know that I would ever call you governor, but possibly I may be in Oklahoma long enough to see you sit in the Governor's chair four years." He smiled complacently.

Some of my Garrard county friends will be interested in knowing that after working for the federal government thirteen years, as Civil Engineer, I resigned three months ago to come to Oklahoma as Assistant State Highway Engineer. I find a large number of Kentuckians in Oklahoma. My brother, John A. Todd, with seven grown sons lives in the north eastern part of the state. I have met a dozen or more Kentuckians in Oklahoma City. Although I have not lived in Kentucky for thirteen years I enjoy every issue of the Record. Last year I was at my old home at Paint Lick to vote both in the primary and November election. So I still call myself a Kentuckian.

Sincerely,

E. N. Todd

Scott.

Saturday afternoon, July 3rd, at 4 o'clock, Raymond Scott, oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. William Scott, of the Buckeye Road, passed away of tuberculosis. For the past year he had been in poor health, and for a month quite ill.

He had every attention by his devoted mother and others, but to no avail.

Raymond was a fine young man, liked by all that knew him, and his passing away is greatly deplored by all, as he was just entering into young manhood, 21 years old last April, and his death leaves a void in the lives of many neighbors and friends.

Besides the grief stricken parents, two brothers, Eugene and Billy Brown survive him.

In early childhood he united with the Presbyterian church at Lancaster. Funeral services were held on Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the grave in the Lancaster cemetery by his pastor, Rev. H. S. Hudson.

The entire community joins in extending deepest sympathy to the bereaved ones, in this hour of sadness, but may they look to the Heavenly Father for comfort.

Loses barn by Lightning

Last Saturday evening the large stock barn of F. L. Thompson was struck by lightning and in a few minutes was totally destroyed by fire. His loss was about 100 barrels of old corn, lot of hay, farming implements, etc., totalling about $3000, with only $1,000 insurance.

If you are not fully insured, you had better see Gaines the Insurance Man. Don't suffer losses like Mr. Thompson. See him now before the lightning strikes your barn or house.

Card of Thanks.

We are deeply grateful to all our friends and neighbors for the kindness shown during the illness and in the death of our dear son. To Rev. H. S. Hudson, pastor of the Presbyterian church, we wish to express our gratitude, for his words of condolence and encouragement.

APPLE BUYERS KNOW CHARACTERISTICS AND USES OF THE SEVERAL VARIETIES

It Pays to Buy Apples by the Barrel If You Have a Place to Store Them.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Different varieties of apples have pomological markings that serve as identification guides to the initiated. Those who "know" apples understand that in many cases an unattractive skin covers flesh of most delicious flavor, while on the other hand many a fair appearing apple leaves the consumer with the conviction that he does not like apples as well as he used to. Buying an apple because its skin is red or because it appears attractive—if you don't know any more about it than that—is like buying a pig in a poke. A rosy apple may taste as good as it looks, but it is quite as apt not to do so. Persons not familiar with the qualities of the different varieties of apples are wise when buying in quantity, to stick to standard sorts. The characteristics of a few of the leading varieties are given as follows:

Ben Davis Leads in Quantity.

From the standpoint of quantity the most important apple to be found on the market is the Ben Davis. It is a good-sized apple, very attractive in appearance, being so heavily striped with red in well-grown specimens, as to make a nearly solid red color on the exposed side. It is notoriously lacking in eating quality but when used for cooking purposes it has considerable merit. Because of its good keeping and shipping qualities it is one of the most widely known of the winter varieties.

The Jonathan is one of the best and one of the most common varieties of apples in season during the fall months and which are excellent for eating uncooked. The Jonathan is a medium-sized red apple and rather small for culinary purposes, but it is seldom used in this way because of its choice dessert qualities.

The Grimes, or Grimes Golden, as it is commonly called, is another fall apple that has a season extending about to the 1st of January. It is commonly used as an eating apple because of its specially fine flavor and other dessert qualities. It is a medium-sized golden yellow apple and should not be held much later than the holidays, because it is apt to develop "apple scald," a storage trouble to which this variety is susceptible, if it is held too long.

One of the best known apples for culinary purposes, although it possesses dessert qualities as well, is the Rhode Island Greening. This is a greenish yellow apple of fairly large size. Some of the apples have a reddish blush on the exposed sides. The Greening possesses good keeping qualities and is primarily a winter apple.

Baldwin Important Commercially.

The most important commercial winter variety grown in the northern apple districts is the Baldwin. It is a solid red apple in well-colored specimens, and is one of the most important long-keeping general-purpose varieties. While not possessing some of the sprightly flavor of some of the dessert varieties, it yet has a wide use for eating as well as culinary purposes.

The Yellow Newton or Albemarle Pippin is a winter dessert apple of yellowish-green color. The crisp, juicy texture of the apple and its very high flavor make this sort particularly prized for eating purposes during the winter months. The Yellow Newton possesses good cooking qualities, but the relatively high price at which it frequently is sold makes it a dessert rather than a cooking apple.

The Winesap and the Stayman Winesap are important varieties widely grown in different parts of the country. The Stayman Winesap is a good-sized, red-striped to nearly solid red apple which possesses excellent keeping qualities and is of much importance both for dessert purposes and for cooking. The Winesap has excellent dessert qualities and is regarded as one of the best general purpose apples on the market, although a little small for an ideal cooking apple.

Northern Spy is Popular.

One of the staple varieties of apples grown principally in the northern apple districts is the Northern Spy. It is of good size and one of the choicest of the dessert apples because of its crisp texture and spicy flavor. It is not lacking in culinary qualities, but like the Jonathan and Grimes and some of the other choice varieties, it is predominantly valuable for dessert purposes.

An apple more frequently boxed than barreled, and grown largely in the Northwest, is the Arkansas Black. It is good sized and very firm and hard until fully matured. Solid red in color, it assumes in many specimens almost a black shade. It is in season during the winter. Its use is principally culinary. It is frequently found on the fruit stands but is not very desirable for eating in its fresh state.

The Banana or Winter Banana is in season in the late fall and winter. This apple can be used for both cooking and dessert. It is a good-sized apple and very attractive in appearance when well grown. Its greenish-yellow surface has considerable bluish when highly colored. It is widely grown and good for general purposes.

FIRE PROTECTION ON FARM OF IMPORTANCE

Blazes Are Started in Several Different Ways.

Grave Misuse Lias in Improper Handling and Storage of Gasoline—Pail of Water is Oldest and Cheapest Extinguisher.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

These are the days when the fire hazard is considerably increased over what it was in the summer months. With the coming of cool weather, quick fires are started in the stoves or furnace and often a fire is discovered that needs repair. Accumulations of inflammable rubbish in which a bad blaze may be started should be got rid of. Matches are used in increased numbers in winter, and that means additional chances of accidental fires. Kerosene is employed in greater quantities, being used for starting fires and for the lamps, and therefore, this hazard is increased. An even graver menace lies in the improper handling of gasoline. It is highly important that every precaution be taken to store the gasoline supply in properly located and constructed reservoirs.

This is the season also for the farmer to look to his fire-fighting equipment. A pail of water is the oldest simplest and cheapest of fire extinguishers. There is no reason why pails of water, to be used only in case of fire, should not be installed in every farm building. If possible they should be painted a special color, preferably red, or labeled so as to be conspicuous and less subject to unauthorized use.

The chemical extinguisher has come into quite general use on automobiles and elsewhere about the farm, and has many advantages over the water bucket. It can be employed, for example, in subduing fires among oils where water is of no value. In the absence of a chemical extinguisher, sand is serviceable in extinguishing burning oil in case of a small fire on the floor or in a shallow container. Sawdust is also effective in putting out oil fires. If it is scattered over the entire surface of the burning liquid so as to smother the flames. The United States department of agriculture has issued a Farmers' Bulletin 1034, "Fire Prevention and Fire Fighting on the Farm," which discusses the various types of fire extinguishers and their merits. It may be had free by addressing the department.

CATTLE HARVEST CORN CROP

Plan Succeeds Very Well When Hogs Are Sent in to Clean Up What Cattle Have Left.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The use of cattle for harvesting corn succeeds very well if hogs are later turned in to clean up what the cattle may have left on the ground. Cattle may be used thus almost as successfully as sheep or hogs.

2-First Glass Farms-2 540 ACRES THE FORESTUS REID LAND IN LINCOLN COUNTY THURSDAY, JULY 22nd

10 O'CLOCK A. M.

One farm of 300 acres, known as the John Hays farm, and the other farm of 240 acres, known as the Will Hays farm. Adjoins the lands of S. C. Harris and J. B. Paxton. Two miles from Stanford, on the Hustonville pike.

This is the soil which has made Kentucky famous, Limestone soil with Red Clay sub-soil. Here is land that has never been on the market. Sugar tree and walnut land, lots of black locusts.

A LOT OF VIRGIN BLUE GRASS SOD. No one has ever offered this land for sale and it took me some time to get Mr. Reid to agree to let me sell it. Here is one of the good ones. This is the kind I like to sell, as somebody is sure to want it.

The 300 acre farm is on the South side of the Hustonville pike, has two sets of improvements. 2 six room dwellings with halls and porches, cistern at each dwelling. Stock barn and tobacco barn, watered by springs and ponds. In a high state of cultivation. Fencing good. 45 acres in corn, 3 acres tobacco, 50 acres in grain sown to grass, 30 acres in barley, balance of the farm in grass.

The 240 acre farm is on the North side of the Hustonville pike and has a splendid two story 8 room dwelling with double hall and porches, splendid cellar. Beautiful yard with large shade trees. 1 stock barn, 1 stock and tobacco barn, and other out buildings, divided into convenient fields and splendidly watered. 7 acres in tobacco, 50 acres in wheat and oats, balance in grass.

These two farms are level and gently rolling, all the land can be cultivated, and there is no waste land.

Each farm has a long frontage on the Hustonville Pike, also on the McCormack Church Pike, and both farms will be subdivided and sold in separate tracts from 25 to 125 acres each. But the division will be so that I can sell you just the number of acres you want. Remember Swinebroad "ALWAYS SELLS" and sells to suit the bidders. Will sell it the way you want to bid on it. Will be up and selling to the "High Dollar" and no by bids and no fake sales. All I ask is for you to look over this land, attend the sale and you name the price.

For further particulars see W. E. Moss, or R. H. Dever, at my Danville office, W. A. Dickerson or George Swinebroad, at my Lancaster office, or Swinebroad, The Real Estate Man LANCASTER, KENTUCKY.

Our automobiles are at your service, day or night. Look up the dates of my other July Auction Sales. Write for catalogue, giving description of July auction sales and also farms for sale privately.

Saturday, JULY 17th, THE ADAMS FARM AT Public Auction

156 ACRES RIGHT AT HUSTONVILLE, LINCOLN COUNTY KY.

Subdivided into two or more tracts. We may sell a few town lots or one acre tracts, as they are very desirable. It is a matter of general knowledge that land around Hustonville is the most productive land in Lincoln county. This farm we are selling has been owned by its present owners over forty years and has the name of being one of the best little farms at Hustonville. Ask the present tenant who has been there fifteen years. He has taken care of it, kept it in a good productive shape and high state of cultivation and at the same time made lots of money on it. 15 acres in wheat, 30 acres in corn, 25 acres in timothy and balance in blue grass.

The farm has a two story frame dwelling, 8 rooms, 2 halls and two porches, located on fine elevation overlooking the town. Has a large stock and tobacco barn, other out buildings. Watered by everlasting springs and branch of Hanging Fork Creek. Ask any one about that "Good Hanging Fork Land." Has a long frontage on pike. It is generally known that there is more business at Hustonville than any place of its size in this section of Kentucky. Business houses, fine dwellings, hotel, two Banks, good streets, Churches, schools, fine graded and high school. 2 1/2 miles from Moreland, 10 miles from Stanford, 10 miles from Danville. A large section of country is tributary to Hustonville.

AN ABSOLUTE SALE and will be sold on easy terms, for possession January 1st, 1921.

Investigate this one. Look it over carefully.

For further particulars see Adams Brothers at Hustonville, W. E. Moss or R. H. Dever at my Danville offices, or W. A. Dickerson or George Swinebroad, at my Lancaster offices, or Swinebroad, The Real Estate Man, Lancaster, Ky.

Our automobiles are at your service.

Look up the dates of my other July Auction Sales. Write for catalogue, giving description of July auction sales and also farms for sale privately.

NEW-FANGLED

By GERTRUDE ARMSTRONG

"No, Marjory there isn't going to be no telephone. Got something else to spend my money for. Just cause Sarah and Fred has got such new-fangled notions into their heads, suppose you got to have the same. We've lived here all these years, and my folks before me, and never had any of these feed ideas until your sister started. Guess you'll be wanting an automobile next."

"Well, never mind," replied his wife meekly. "I just thought 'twould be kind of handy in case of sickness, living a mile from our neighbors, and I get lonesome sometimes, and could talk to Sarah."

Her husband made no reply, but went about the evening chores. 'Twas so unlike Marjory to ask him to waste money on anything so foolish. Happily, indeed! There was old Molly, whenever she wanted to visit and to run into town, who could take her in less than an hour.

She so seldom asked for anything or complained that his conscience bothered him a little, and the look of disappointment on her face he found hard to get out of his thoughts.

Never mind, some time soon, when he got his work along, they would go into town for a holiday. She had been working pretty hard lately and probably needed a change.

And thus like most of us, he soothed his conscience with promises of later for doing in the future.

When he returned to the house Marjory was just finishing her dishes.

"I guess I'll go right to bed, John," she said. "I don't feel very smart to-night."

"Well, I would," he replied, looking at her keenly. And take something hot for that cold. I don't like the way it's hanging on. Been this way now for most a week." And he kissed her and patted her kindly.

It was two hours later when he opened their bedroom door. He tiptoed softly to the bed, where she lay, open-eyed and apparently awake.

"Looks like a storm," said John, and he crossed the room and carefully closed the window, muttering as he did so, "More new-fangled notions."

There was no response from the bed. What was the matter? 'Twas not at all like sweet-tempered Marjory to hold a grudge. He bent over her and then started back. The staring eyes and burning face did not look familiar.

"Go and see if David is covered, John. It's chilly tonight," she gasped. David! Their boy who had been dead five years. Then it burst upon him—she was delirious. What should he do?

Get a doctor, of course. If he could only get word to Sarah! And his heart sank as he thought of the precious time he would waste driving all those miles.

"Oh, God! what would I give for a telephone!" burst from his agonized lips.

He rushed out to the stable for old Molly, backed her from her stall, and harnessed. His hands seemed palsied. It was ages before he got started. Driving with all speed he came to sight of Sarah's. They were up, he could see the gleam of lights through the trees. Five minutes more, and with bustling heart he rushed in and told them his errand.

What was there for him in life, anyway, if she was unhappy?

She who had helped him save day by day, never complaining, always cheerful—when she had asked for a part of what was really hers she had been refused, he calling it a waste of money, when but for just such a "new-fangled notion" he would have lost the best little partner man ever had.

Many weeks after a handsome little rumbustious drove into the yard, from which alighted three men, carrying wires and tools.

"Here's your air," Mr. Cobb. The telephone men were coming out this way so I drove them over. If there is anything wrong let us know. We'll be right by night. So long."

"Why, John, what does this mean?" asked Marjory, when the men had started to work downstairs.

"It means that the men have been working for some time, and you're going to have that telephone, and if you don't like this here machine you're going to have another one, and pick it out yourself. They might be 'new-fangled notions' but they're darned good ones to have around a house."

And Marjory smiled and thanked him as only she knew how.

Samoa National Drink.

The national beverage of the Samoan Islanders is "kava," obtained from the dried fruit of a plant known to the botanist as Piper methysticum, says the Kansas City Star. The classic method of its preparation was by chewing. Water was added, and, after straining, the stuff was ready to drink. Missionaries convinced the natives that this method did not accord with the best social customs, and so nowadays they grind the kava root in a stout mortar with a stone pestle. To any unaccustomed person kava tastes rather like soapuds, though some say it has a flavor of vanilla. Many Americans, however, having acquired a liking for it, drink it by the gallon. But the native way of preparing it is too slow for them, and they prefer to use a meat grinder.

DISSOLVING PARTNERSHIP

Bright and Paxton's Splendid 235 Acre River Bottom Farm

(Formerly Owned by R. H. Bronaugh,) Subdivided.

All Farming Implements, 50 Head of Stock, 200 Barrels of Corn, Etc.

Public Auction

ON THE PREMISES

SATURDAY, JULY 17th

AT 10:30 A. M.

LOCATED:—Right at the edge of that thriving town of Crab Orchard with her fine schools, churches, stores, bank, famous Crab Orchard Springs, splendid citizenship and less than one mile from passenger depot and shipping station on L. and N. Part of this farm is within the city limits and is penetrated by a street which leads to the Graded High School.

Since W. M. Bright's death it has become necessary to wind up the partnership existing between him and J. B. Peaton. This farm is up for the "High Dollar" without reserve, by-bid or limit. AN ABSOLUTE SALE. The business must be wound up.

THE IMPROVEMENTS:—Old fashioned brick bungalow of 8 rooms, hall, two porches, good cellar, set on a beautiful lawn, with avenue leading from National Highway, "BOONE WAY." Tenant house of three rooms and all necessary outbuildings. Tobacco barn 36 x 100 ft. and 20 ft. to eaves, good stock barn, three corn cribs, large silo of 90 tons, hog houses, etc. Fine orchard. Place well fenced; excellent water, numerous everloving form springs and deep well.

All of this rich and fertile farm in grass except about 40 to 50 acres. The clover and timothy meadows and corn in the bottoms are wonderful to see. 150 acres of this farm is tile drained river bottom land on which was placed 20 corloads of drain tile—20 miles of it placed there by and under the expert engineering supervision of the best tile man in Kentucky, just at the beginning of the war before there was any advance in labor, material, and freight. This tile drained land is not affected by either dry or wet weather, having a porous soil to the depth of 15 to 30 feet. A crop rotation of oats, corn and clover is now being maintained and is producing wonderful results, and is becoming as fertile as the valley of the Nile.

This land is producing, and will continue to produce as much corn, clover etc. as any lands in the corn belts of Indiana, Illinois and Iowa, where they sell at from $300 to $500. per acre. An opportunity to buy land like this only comes occasionally—do not let it slip.

The 83 acres in upland grows the finest quality of tobacco grown in Central Kentucky. Excellent crops from this land have frequently topped the Danville, Ky., market during the whole season.

This farm will produce larger dividends on the amount invested than any place we know of.

This is undoubtedly the biggest farm opportunity that has been offered in Central Kentucky this year. If you are in the market for a farm, we urge a personal inspection. If you see the land and the crops it produces, you will realize its wonderful value.

Mrs. W. M. Bright and J. B. Peaton sell. You know what this means. YOU say what it is worth and take the farm. We merely suggest the terms and look after the details of the sale etc. Terms exceedingly liberal and made known on day of sale. DON'T LET THIS OPPORTUNITY PASS YOU BY.

The personally belonging to Mrs. W. M. Bright and Messrs J. B. Peaton and James Messer consists of a world of farming tools and implements necessary to run a 600 acre farm, two large cribs of corn containing from 175 to 200 barrels of corn, 50 head of stock of mules, horses, cattle etc.

REMEMBER THE DAY AND HOUR SATURDAY JULY 17th AT 10:30 A. M. Be on hands promptly. Mr. James Messer on the place will take pleasure in showing the farm to prospective purchasers. Dinner on the grounds.

For full particulars, blue prints etc. see, write or phone either Mrs. W. M. Bright, or J. B. Peaton, Stanford, Ky., or

NEIGHBORS

By LOTTIE W. SIMMONS.

"There! I need raisins for this pudding and, come to think, I'm all out," declared Myra Higgins in a vexed tone as she vigorously stirred the contents of a huge yellow bowl.

Jake Higgins looked up from the newspaper he was reading.

"I'll go over to Julia's and borrow a cupful," he offered.

A dull red stained Myra's cheeks. She glanced angrily at the good-looking middle-aged man who had spoken, and a great desire came over her to shake him.

"You stay away from Julia's," she snapped. "You go there too much already. Don't you know, Jake, the whole town is talking about you and Julia Martin?"

"Oh, Lord! Myra, don't begin that," replied Jake.

"Occasionally," winked Myra.

"Jake, you make me sick! You've been in there twice this morning, already. How many times yesterday, and the day before, and the day before that? Why don't you pack your trunk and move over? As for Tom Martin, he hasn't the complexion of a sick chicken. He starts something! You could tug his wife off under his very eyes and he'd be as resigned as a dead lamb. Neighbors, indeed! How about Laura Fickett? Called on her lately? She's a neighbor."

"Look here!" blazed Jake. "You know as well as I that I stopped calling on Laura 20 years ago."

"I know you did," was the hot retort, "and it's high time now that you paid her a call! Here," grabbing up a cup, "you take this and ask Laura to let me have a cupful of raisins till Wednesday."

"Well, I guess not!" exploded Jake, jumping to his feet and thrusting out his stubborn chin.

"All right, Jake Higgins!" Myra's voice dropped to zero. "Just because I'm your sister I've stayed here and kept house for you—stayed when you know I've almost died for the city and the work I wanted to do there. But at last I'm going—that is, unless you want to run over to Laura's and bring me a cupful of raisins."

"D—!" Jake gritted between his teeth; and as he straightened his neck, he was dully conscious of the fact that his safety razor had done good work that morning, the only trace of a strong beard being a bluish shade about his square chin. A queer little sensation began to play about his heart. Thoughts flew thick and fast. Fate was leading him back to Laura!

He recalled what a sweet little thing she had been—long yellow curls, cheeks as red as the bright side of an attraction apple, big eyes and a dimple brought often into play by means of a crinkly little smile. Let's see—Laura would be forty in June. Lord! How time did fly!

As usual it was a foolish thing they had quarreled over.

Nobody saw the hand of fate when Tom Martin and his wife came back after years of wandering and rented the Bromley place.

They had all been playmates together, Tom and Julia, Jake and Laura, and Myra.

At sight of Jake's retreating back Myra's face relaxed and she smiled. A couple of moments later Julia Martin appeared at the back door.

"My clothesline is caught, Myra. I can't get it either one way or the other. I thought maybe Jake—"

"He isn't here," interrupted Myra coolly. "But come in; I want to ask you something. Why don't you tell Jake to keep away from your house? Do you realize that he is costing you your good reputation?"

Julia eyed her friend very seriously for a guilty woman.

"What the gossip say can't do me any real harm, Myra," she replied gently. "We'll soon be leaving—Tom can't stay in one place long, you know, but Laura will be here all her life, and Jake—here in this little town where they were born—and they might as well be happy. And you, Myra, you want your chance, don't you? If you are the old Myra, with the old ambitions, you certainly do."

Myra was puzzled.

"I don't know what you are driving at," she said.

"What do you suppose Jake and I talk about when he comes in?" she asked with a bright smile. "I'll tell you—one topic always—Laura. That's why he comes. He loves her, of course—he's always loved her, and he likes to talk about her, or hear me talk. I should say. Haven't I almost worn out the English language raving about her yellow hair, her crinkly smile, her dimple, her superiority, her tender heart, her goodness, and still that man isn't satisfied? It's like pouring water into a jug with a hole in it. And, Myra, can't you foresee the result? He's going to march over there some day—little by little I've been melting his pride—and then what should have happened 20 years ago will happen then."

"Oh, Julia," almost whispered Myra, "he's over there now; I sent him—no, I didn't! It's you! If it hadn't been for you—God bless you, Julia."

Soon after that the wanderlust struck Tom Martin and he moved away to the next town. Shortly after his arrival a friend stopped him on the street with this remark:

"Heard about Jake Higgins, Tom? He married a neighbor of his last night."

OHIO FARM FOR SALE.

FARM NO. 1042. A bluegrass farm of 78 acres in Darke County Ohio, on pike road two and one-half miles from railroad station, one mile from church and school, all level to gently rolling land, can work entire farm with tractor; 73 acres cleared land, 5 acres in timber, 10 acres in bluegrass sod, 10 acres in clover and other grasses. FOR CONGRESS.

We are authorized to announce
RALPH GILBERT, of Shelby county, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Congress in this, the Eighth Congressional District of Kentucky. State Primary Election,
Saturday, August 7, 1920.

FOR CONGRESS.

We are authorized to announce
COL. FRANK L. RIPPY, of Anderson county, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Congress in this, the Eighth Congressional District of Kentucky. State Primary Election, Saturday, August 7, 1920.

A GREAT TICKET.

Every democrat in the land should be pleased with the work of the convention at Frisco. James Middleton Cox,
Governor of Ohio, for president, and Franklin D. Roosevelt, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, for Vice President, make the very strongest ticket that could have been selected. Not only a vote getting ticket but men pre-eminently qualified and fitted both by training and experience for the great tasks they would be expected to perform if selected in November.
There is a marked contrast in this regard between the selected leaders of the two parties.
Governor Cox, born and reared on a farm, a printer, newspaper editor, congressman for several terms, three times elected Governor of the great republican state of Ohio, furnishes to him the widest executive experience and prepares him for the duties of President. His fine executive poise has enabled him to so administer the affairs of Governor of Ohio to the eminent satisfaction of the people of that great state with its varied and diversified business interest, to the end that he is admitted by all to be the most popular governor in all the Union. The democrats could not have done better than selecting Governor Cox. He is a democrat of the old school.

He believes that this government is for all the people and no class should be favored in the executions of the governmental functions. He not only believes this in principle but that the government should be so administered. His record as governor is outstanding proof.

We have heard of no democrat displeased. A suggestion of dissatisfaction from any democrat would be a grave reflection on ones democratic faith. Franklin D. Roosevelt is equally attractive for vice president. A leader at one time in the New York legislature, when he stood for clean and progressive politics. As assistant in the Navy during these strenuous years where he performed those arduous duties with energy, ability and fidelity and endowed with a brilliant intellect with such a record he appeals to the voters of the nation.

The democrats present a strong ticket upon a platform that is above criticism.

The Republicans concede that there is a race, a real contest on now. Such a ticket and upon the platform adopted the voters of this nation ought to elect Cox and Roosevelt in November. To say that we are pleased with the work at San Francisco expresses it mildly.

As The Editor Sees It.

Experts are telling us that the country will be short of coal this winter, because the mining companies can not get freight cars enough for shipping the coal to the distributing points.

Go into any big railroad yard in the country and you will see thousands and thousands of cars standing on side tracks, waiting to be unloaded. In numerous cases they have been standing many days, possibly weeks, yet no apparent attempt is being made to unload them. Even in small towns you will find cars standing day after day.

This condition is one great cause for the shortage in rail transportation.
It is the reason why the mines are not putting more coal on the market. It is the reason why many people will freeze next winter if coal is not moved more rapidly.

It would be an easy matter to correct this disquieting condition of affairs.

The government could take one great railroad center as an example.
It could send secret service operatives to that city to check up on the idle cars, and the cause for such idleness. An explanation could be demanded of the railroad company.

If the company could not give a legitimate reason, the officials should be punished—jailed if possible.

If not the fault of the company, and the consignee is responsible, he should be punished—jailed if possible.

And if government officials whose duty it is to prosecute such offenders show an inclination to delay or evade the issue because some "prominent people" are involved, the president should remove them from office and otherwise punish them—jail the shirking prosecutors, if possible.

One such shakeup as an example would be sufficient. Cars would begin to move everywhere, and would keep on moving.

And the people could keep warm next winter—which is doubtful under present conditions.

Think a little and you will call to mind some young lady whose sweetness of disposition is a marvel to her friends.

Part of that disposition is hereditary, but much of it is the result of environment and early training.

Some mothers have a rare talent in the training of children. They do not rule by threats and spanks, but from early childhood the pride of the little one is brought to the fore.

As early as it can understand, it is taught to be gentle and sweet, and to take pride in excelling in those womanly qualities which appeal so strongly to the human race.

As a child is taught in its infancy,
so will it invariably be in maturity.

If all mothers would bear this fact constantly in mind, there would be more of that innate sweetness which is so charming in the female sex, and which appeals so strongly to manhood in all stations of life.

The king of Greece contracted a morganatic marriage with a charming lady not of the royal circle. His army officers and his government officials are much distressed thereat, and are endeavoring to induce the king to cast her off—toss her into discard—and marry some one of the blood royal.

If the young king is weak he will put a good wife behind him and cling to his tinsel crown. If he is half a man he will remain true to the woman he has married.

But kings as a rule are not quite half man, and the ultimate decision of young Alexander is problematical.

The old world does not possess a single crown that could compensate for the loss of the love and respect of a good woman.

Some day kings will have brains instead of vanity, or there will be no more kings.

MOTOR EXPRESS WILL AID TRANSPORTATION

Facilities for Hauling Farm Produce Are Lacking.

Solution of Problem Seen in Establishment of Rural Auto Truck Feeder Lines—Specially Designed Vehicles Used.

It has been asserted that 50 per cent of the perishable produce now grown on farms throughout the United States is wasted because proper facilities for hauling it to market are lacking. The loss to farmers, together with the economic loss to the whole nation due to this condition, reaches a tremendous total. It is further claimed the solution of this problem would go a long way to satisfactorily reduce the high cost of living. In a word it would give the farmer more money for his capital and work, but at the same time make the tariff easier on the ultimate consumer.

What is really needed is a branch feeder line to each farm.

Obviously the railroads can not build them. The electric roads help, but do not entirely fill the bill. There is, however, one method of transportation which, used in conjunction with either of the above mentioned utilities, happily solves the problem. It is the motor truck line.

Worthwhile trucks on good roads form the important link in the farmers' transportation system which will bring about the state of affairs referred to.

Already progressive cities are installing freight terminals for truck lines. Motor express has proven to be a logical, economical and sure method of bringing the farm to market. Those lines are run the same as any railroad and may either operate independently or in conjunction with a railroad.

An example of the latter class is found in the motor truck feeder lines of a Wisconsin-Illinois railway concern. About a year ago this company realized its express service was inadequate to care for its territory. They solved their problem by establishing rural motor express lines to take up the work where the interurban left off.

Motor Trucks Expected to Solve Transportation Problem.

Trucks specially designed for high-speed cross-country work were the vehicles selected for the work.
They were equipped with bodies and trailers and put to work over certain routes. They easily proved their economic worth.

If a farmer has enough material going in, a trailer can be left at his farm. He can then load it and it will be picked up on the next trip.
The trucks run on time table schedule, make two trips over their routes each day, deliver and pick up all kinds of shipments no matter how small or large. Shipments received anywhere in the system up to 6 p.
m. are at their destination, which may be any other place covered by the lines, before noon of the following day.

From the time the first trucks were installed the popularity of the feeder lines was never in doubt. More business than they could possibly handle was quickly offered to them and the fleet has been expanding ever since.
They offer a really dependable service which means money to the farmers served. The service has been in operation a year and the trucks have functioned all the time. Even the severest days of last winter did not cause a tie-up of shipments.

CARING FOR AILING ANIMALS

Whenever Tuberculosis Is Discovered
Cow Should Be Separated From Healthy Cattle.

A cow infected with tuberculosis should be separated from healthy cattle as soon as the disease is discovered as, otherwise, she is constantly a medium for the transmission of the ailment to her mates. It is imperative that no newly purchased animals be introduced into a healthy herd until they have successfully passed a thorough tuberculin test administered by an experienced veterinarian.

Church's History.

With much diversity of opinion on minor points, there is a general agreement in dividing the history of the church into three great periods. The first, from the birth of Christ to the time of Constantine; the second from that epoch to the Reformation, and third, from the Reformation to the present time.

BETTER CARE OF SHOES IS URGED

Footwear Requires Good Treatment to Preserve Quality and Neat Appearance.

PERSPIRATION ROTS LINING

Good Economy to Keep Two Pairs and Wear Them on Alternate Days—Thorough Airing on Shoe-Trees Keeps Them Shapely.

When a pair of dress shoes could be bought for a five-dollar bill most people were not greatly concerned as to how long they would wear. But now nearly everybody is taking better care of his shoes in an endeavor to prolong their usefulness.

For those who are not "shoe-wise" the following advice on the care of shoes given by clothing specialists in the United States department of agriculture, may prove helpful.

Walk Right to Save Shoes. Careful poise of the body in walking prolongs the life of shoes. A careless, slumped gait wears shoes unevenly, while an erect carriage tends to keep the soles and heels level.

Shoes, even more than most other articles of clothing, need to be aired after wearing in order to prevent the perspiration from rotting the lining.

If You Want to Ruin Shoes, Put Them While Wet on Radiator.

It is a good plan to keep them on shoe-trees or stuffed with tissue paper, because in this way the wrinkles are forced out and the original shape is preserved.

Wetting tends to spoil the appearance of shoes and to shorten their period of service; therefore, overshoes should be worn in bad weather.

Wet shoes should be dried slowly and carefully for heat tends to crack the leather. It is especially important to restore the shape of wet shoes by shoe-trees or paper stuffing. Even with the most careful drying, moisture tends to rot the threads with which a shoe is sewn, and "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure."

All types of rubber overshoes are now so expensive that they should be treated as carefully as the shoes they protect. They should be kept from great heat, and set right side up with care to prevent their losing shape. They should also be washed or brushed so that the grit on them may not wear down the surface.

It is economy to keep two pairs of shoes in use and wear them on alternate days; the thorough airing on shoe-trees or stuffed with paper keeps them fresher and more shapely so that each pair gives longer service. All shoes should be kept clean and well brushed. Leather shoes may be rubbed with vasoline to keep them soft and also to keep moisture from passing quickly through the leather.

While canvas shoes are usually cleaned with a commercial preparation. If water is used, no more than necessary should be applied on the shoes and they must be cleaned on shoe-trees or stuffed with paper to prevent the canvas from shrinking. If they are badly soiled they may be washed with a soap that contains whitening dried, and if necessary treated with a commercial cleaner. All traces of the cleaner should be carefully wiped from the edges of a colored sole; otherwise the sole will have a shoddy appearance. White suede and tackskin shoes are cleaned in much the same general way, but with special cleaners made for the purpose.

Chest or Bags Conserve Space. Where conservation of space is not necessary, a small chest for holding shoes may be added to the furnishings of the bedroom; or shoe bags hung on the inside of the closet door are good. Pairs of bags in different colors are very useful for packing shoes when traveling; they keep the shoes from being scratched, prevent them from soiling other articles, and make

INFERIOR SALT WILL RUIN COUNTRY HIDES

Hair Is So Set That It Cannot Be Removed Properly.

Incident Illustrates Importance of Attention to Details in Handling and Curing—Alum Is Especially Objectionable.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) Hides should be salted only with clean, pure salt free from alum, according to a recent statement of the bureau of chemistry. This bureau is making a study of the best methods for skinning farm animals and curing hides in order to produce a high grade leather. Salt containing alum partly tans the hide and sets the hair so that it cannot be removed. Hides which cannot be properly tanned bring a loss to the tanner and prejudice him in future purchases against hides from the same source.

Tanners recently submitted to the bureau of chemistry green salted hides which could not be untanned after tanning in the usual way, in order to find out the cause. An examination showed that on the basis of the dry hide unharmed spots contained 0.8 per cent of alumina and the portions where the hair was not loosened contained 1.25 per cent of alumina. The portions of the hide which contained 0.8 per cent alumina untanned with difficulty, while the portions containing 1.25 per cent could not be untanned even on the beam. An inferior salt containing alum had been used in salting the hides and had set the hair.

This incident illustrates the importance of attention to details in the handling and curing of hides and skins. Farmers, country butchers and dealers are advised by the department to use only clean, pure salt in salting hides. The presence of alum in salt is especially objectionable and as little as five per cent in the salt can be detected usually by its bitter taste.

Farmers' Bulletin No. 1035, which gives detailed directions for skinning, curing and marketing country hides and skins, may be obtained upon application to the United States department of agriculture, Washington, D. C.

VEGETABLES ARE IMPORTANT

Most Intensively Worked Field on Farm Is Garden—Irish Potatoes Are Leaders.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The most intensively worked field on the farm is the garden.

For convenience it is usually located close to the dwelling. Many farmers have, in addition, truck patches in Garden Should Be Located Conveniently to Dwelling.

Fields where inter-tilled crops, such as corn, are grown. These patches are conveniently plowed, prepared, and cultivated at the same time the ground is worked for the regular crop. In the truck patch potatoes, sweet corn, cabbage, tomatoes, squash and cucumbers are usually raised.

Vegetables constitute only about 11 per cent (in value) of all food consumed by farmers, and about 80 per cent of the vegetables are furnished by the farm. In general, Irish potatoes are easily the most important vegetable raised, constituting nearly one-half of the value of vegetables consumed. In the South, however, about twice as many sweet potatoes as Irish potatoes are used.

SILO WILL PRESERVE CROPS

Alfalfa, Cane, Kaffir, Corn and Other Forage, May Be Saved by Storing in Huge Pit.

Rainy weather at the time clover or alfalfa should be cut will often make it impossible to cure the forage and produce hay of much value. Prolonged rain in the fall will prevent the curing of such forage as cane, kaffir, corn, millet, and a late cutting of alfalfa. A silo will save all this feed and preserve it in excellent shape.

GIVE TEAM SOME ATTENTION

During Exceedingly Warm Weather Horses or Mules Are Liable to Get Overheated.

Those who cultivate crops when the weather is exceedingly warm should notice the team. It would be a very unfortunate matter to allow the horses or mules to become too warm. This is especially true when the sun is shining brightly.

AS OTHERS SEE US

By HAZEL M. ROBINSON.

As Elsie Heath entered the Whitecroft ten room a spirit of peace and quiet seemed to surround her. Here after a long, tiresome day, was peace for the weary mind and sore heart. No raucous blare of jazz jarred tired nerves, no loud laughter pierced the stillness. Even the serving was so quiet, hardly a dish was laid to rattle.

As she waited for her order to be brought, she was conscious of a familiar voice coming apparently over the low partition between the lunch she occupied and the next. It seemed incredible yet that surely was Richard's voice. Yes, his companion spoke his name. Wonderingly, she began to eat the food placed before her, paying no attention to the conversation, until her own name was spoken.

"If it wasn't for Miss Heath, I'd like it immensely," said the girl.

"What's the matter with her, Miriam?" asked the man.

Why, surely, that was Miriam Brown, the new girl she had hired two weeks ago. As if in a trance, she sat and waited for the next word.

"She's worse than Miss Monday—goes pussy-footing around the place, looking as though she had lost her last friend. Her eyes are sad. Never a smile or joke from her. Cross, if the least little thing goes wrong. The place has changed a lot in the last year, the girls all say."

Elsie continued eating mechanically, until her food was gone, then she deliberately set herself to eavesdropping.

"Plenty of talking and laughing in those days, but plenty of work done, too. Seemed like a jolly family of sisters, from all they say. Now, the girls are delighted when the 4:30 closing hour comes and they can get outside to do their talking and laughing."

Elsie seemed dazed, as one awakening from a trance. Mechanically she picked up her wraps, paid her bill and started homeward. Once in her room, the healing tears began to flow, and memory recalled the whole story.

Elsie Heath had opened an office as public stenographer five years ago. Her location was good and her careful attention to work soon brought her more than she could do alone. The business had grown until she employed four girls, while she tended only to receiving the patrons and doing the bookkeeping.

Richard Ferris had been among her first patrons. They became more than good friends, yet no closer ties were made before he left to serve his country. Just before he had left to come home he wrote declaring his love for her. For days and weeks after mailing her reply she sang at her work. Her laugh never was so ready, her jokes so many or witty, nor the place so gay.

Two months, then three, went by, and no word came from him. She read of his return in the papers. Each day she looked for him every time the door opened.

Then had begun the change Miriam had spoken of.

Elsie finally sat up, looked about her, and thought what a blessed thing it is to "see ourselves as others see us." A card stuck in one corner of her mirror flashed out "Never too late to mend," and its twin from the other corner sent the message "Better late than never." She got up, patted her hair into place, bathed her flushed face and whisked a bit of powder over it and made a resolve. No man on earth was worth so many hot, bitter tears. Then, too, she had made her dear girl suffer in her bitterness. It was "up to her," and she'd play fair from now on.

She spent the rest of the evening searching the latest papers and magazines for new jokes.

Next morning she startled the girls by arriving one-half hour late, greeting them with an unusually cheery good morning, and then springing a joke on each of them. She noticed their puzzled, yet pleasant glances, as she passed into her small office, and for the rest of the morning joyousness filled every inch of the little room.

The girls were all busy on hurry orders, so Elsie slipped on a record and started the dictaphone, used only for such emergencies, as she did not like to use it. The door quietly opened and she looked into the smiling eyes of Richard Ferris.

No one knew just what happened until the next morning. Miriam, looking for more work, took a dictaphone record and heard this:

"One hundred copies circular for James & Smith to be ready tomorrow morning as follows—" "Dick!" "Elsie, girl, oh my girl. And I never saw till last night just how selfish I have been. As soon as I received your wonderful letter, dear, I was impatient to come to you, but luck was against me. That old wound began to bother again, and after I got this—" "Oh, Dick!"

"Sure, but it's almost as good as the other, jointed and everything, and I always was right handed, you know. Well, after I got this, I couldn't just bear to come for your pity. But it took my kid cousin to show me my mistake. Can I ever make up for the hurt these months have brought you? I'll spend the rest of my life trying. Can you forgive me? Oh, you blessedest!"

Miriam sighed. "Glad, before I destroy this record, do just come and hear the most ravishing thing!"

SIMPLE DIRECTIONS OUTLINED FOR MAKING VINEGAR AT HOME—USE ONLY RIPE FRUIT

Where Vinegar in Quantity is to Be Made, Use a Cider Mill.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Vinegar is one of the condiments which every good cook regards as a necessity on her pantry shelves. Used with discretion, food to which it is added will be transformed into a relish and will give zest to an otherwise insipid meal. Along with other groceries, vinegar has gone up in price since the great war, until in many parts of the country 50 to 60 cents a gallon is now the retail market price. The making of vinegar at home is a simple process and not many years ago who could obtain the necessary fruit juice. With the present high price of vinegar there has been a revival of this old household art. Those who have set up a vinegar keg or barrel, secure a superior product and at the same time beat old High Cost of Living.

Fruits for Making Vinegar.

Vinegar is usually made from apples, although grapes and oranges are also used to some extent. Certain other fruits, such as blackberries, figs, peaches, watermelons (after concentration of juice), sorghum and cane sirup have been used with good results. Many wild fruits, such as the blackberry, elderberry, and persimmon, which frequently are not completely or properly utilized, will make excellent vinegar. As a matter of fact, any wholesome fruit or vegetable juice can be used for vinegar making, provided it contains sufficient sugar. Some fruits, such as the guava or Kieffer pear, contain only five to eight per cent of sugar, which is not sufficient to make a strong, satisfactory vinegar.

Fruit used for making vinegar should be sound and fully ripe, for ripe fruit contains more sugar and consequently produces a stronger vinegar. Partially decayed fruit is no better for vinegar making than for eating and should not be used. Select sound, ripe fruit, wash thoroughly, and remove all decayed portions. Crush either in a machine made for this purpose, such as a cider mill, or for small quantities, a food chopper. Squeeze out the juice in a press and put into a clean barrel, keg or crock for fermentation. Great care should be taken to have all the utensils thoroughly cleaned and to handle the fruit in a cleanly manner. If old kegs or barrels, especially old vinegar barrels, are used, they should be cleaned thoroughly and all traces of the old vinegar removed. If this is not done the old vinegar will interfere with the alcoholic fermentation and possibly spoil the product.

Start Fermentation.

After the juice has been squeezed out add a fresh yeast cake to every five gallons of juice. A good fermentation often results from chance inoculation with the wild yeast of the air. This is the method ordinarily followed in making cider vinegar. Experiments have shown, however, that a much stronger vinegar can be made by using yeast to start the fermentation. Work the yeast up thoroughly in about one-half cupful of the juice and add to the expressed juice, stirring thoroughly. Cover with a cloth to keep insects from it and allow to ferment. The best temperature for fermentation is between 80 and 90 degrees. Do not put in a cold cellar or the fermentation will be too slow. At 80 to 90 degrees alcoholic fermentation will usually be complete in from three to four days to a week, or when "working" starts, as indicated by the cessation of bubbling. The next step in the process is acetic acid fermentation, during which the alcohol is changed into acetic acid.

After the bubbling stops it will be found advantageous to add some good strong vinegar in the proportion of one gallon of vinegar to three or four gallons of fermented juice. Usually, however, no vinegar is added and the inoculation of the fermented juice with acetic acid bacteria is left to chance. This chance inoculation generally produces a more or less satisfactory product, but if the vinegar is added, the results are much better. Instead of vinegar one may add a good quantity of so-called "mother." If "mother" is used, however, use only that growing in the surface of the vinegar. Vinegar

"mother" which has fallen to the bottom is no longer producing acetic acid.

Keep in Dark Place.

After adding the vinegar, cover with a cloth and keep in a dark place between 70 and 80 degrees. Do not disturb the film that forms for this is the true "mother" and do not exclude the air. Taste the juice every week, and when it ceases to increase in acid or is as sour as desired, siphon off and store in kegs or bottles. Fill full and stopper tight. If this is not done the acid will gradually disappear and the vinegar will "turn to water." The same bacteria that produces the acid will also destroy it if allowed to grow unhindered. If the directions are followed, especially as regards temperature, the process will usually be completed in six weeks to two months, where only a few gallons of juice are used.

Many fruit juices are turbid after fermentation, while others, particularly apple vinegar, may clarify themselves spontaneously. One of the simplest ways of filtration to use in the home manufacture of vinegar is to thoroughly mix about a teaspoonful of fuller's earth or animal charcoal with a quart of vinegar and filter through filter paper.

It is a common practice with many people to make household vinegar from fruit parings and cores, cold tea, and even from the water in which potatoes or other vegetables are boiled. Sugar, of course, is added, just as in the case of fruit juices that do not contain sufficient sugar.

DETERMINE AGE OF CHICKEN

Good Method Is to Grasp End of Breast Bone Between Thumb and Finger and Bend It.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A good method of determining the age of dressed fowls, according to specialists of the United States department of agriculture, is to grasp the end of the breast bone farthest from the head between the thumb and finger and attempt to bend it to one side. In a very young bird, such as a broiler chicken or a green goose, it will bend easily like the cartilage of the human ear. In a bird a year or so old, it will be brittle and, in an old bird, tough and hard to bend or break. Unscrupulous dealers sometimes break one end of the breast bone before showing the bird on the market, in order that the buyer will believe the bird to be a young one.

RECIPE FOR COTTAGE CHEESE

Housewives Becoming Familiar With Value of Excellent Substitute for Meat.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Both city and country housewives have become familiar with the value of cottage cheese as a meat substitute. If your family is tired of your old recipes, in which the cheese is an ingredient, why not try some new, approved ones? "Cottage Cheese and Its Uses," Office of the Secretary, Circular 109, issued by the department of agriculture, will be sent to anyone who writes for it.

HOUSEHOLD QUESTIONS

All meats possible should be served on the porch or under a tree.

Plan the housework so it can be done in the cool of the morning.

Keeping the baby cool and quiet is one preventive of digestive troubles.

Canned cherries and strawberries are quite as good for pie as the fresh fruit.

A garment may be much improved if worn buttonholes are worked over neatly.

Idealism.
Idealism is an integral part of our inheritance.—Bliss Perry.

Nuts Grown in United States.
About the only nuts that have been so far raised in this country on a large scale are the English walnut and the almond, the former mainly in southern California, the latter in central California, also the pecan in the southern states. The culture of the pecan has of late become an important and exceedingly profitable industry in the South.

Eucalyptus Trees.
The grand eucalyptus trees in Gippsland are probably the grandest of their kind in the world, and quite as magnificent as the Californian giants, only not so large in circumference. The shedding of their bark is a mistake. What the tree does do is this: It sheds the old, dry, broken, and coarse bark, but the new one is sound and solid, and is not shed. The new bark is clean and very smooth, no branches growing for 100 feet or more.

"Scapa Flow."
In Scotch the word scapa means "head" and flow means "sea." Scapa flow is the portion of the sea in the southern part of the Orkney Islands which extends from Founa to the Pentland firth. It is fifteen miles long and about eight miles wide, and opens by Hoy sound in the northwest joining Pentland firth in the south near the island of Swona. The term scapa may perhaps be traced to the Gaelic scapadh, to scatter, spread.

Old Pennsylvania City.
York, Pa., is a city of ancient origin. Here was located the first settlement west of the Susquehanna river. From September 30, 1777, to June 27, 1778, she was the nation's capital, for during that time, the British then occupying Philadelphia, the continental congress met in her courthouse. The first money sent by the king of France to aid the cause of American independence was received by congress in this city. And here the first national Thanksgiving proclamation was issued.

Filbert Worth Cultivating.
A nut almost unknown in the United States is the filbert, one of the most delicious of all nuts. It is cultivated on a large scale for the market in the county of Kent, England. A larger variety is known as the "cob nut." The filbert is as superior to the hazel nut—as of which family it is a member—as the hazel nut is superior to the pecan. Attempts to raise the filbert on a commercial scale in the United States have not so far met with success.

Virtue in Paying Debts.

Paying of debts is, next to the grace of God, the best means in the world to deliver you from a thousand temptations to sin and vanity.—Delaney.

Genius Always Envied.

Such is the destiny of great men that their superior genius always exposes them to be the butt of the envenomed darts of calumny and envy.—Voltaire.

Wanted Full Information.

Johnnie's father was ill in a distant city and Johnnie asked his mother who was taking care of him. She replied: "Oh, he has two nurses." After much thought, he said: "Are they maids?"

Kindheartedness.

The thing that St. Similan's mule died of was kindheartedness. St. couldn't stand it to see anybody walk, so he kept the wagon loaded so heavy that the poor old creature got too feeble to kick and passed away.—Exchange.

Another Paradox.

A painful mistake is reported from North London. It appears that a young lady who went to a fancy dress ball as "The Silent Wife" was awarded the first prize for her clever impersonation of a telephone girl.—Punch, London.

Why Despotism Irrks.

We bow to the government of God, but we turn against the despot. No man likes to share in the shipwreck of a vessel in which he has been embarked by violence, and which has been steered contrary to his wish and opinion.—Amiel.

Healthy Place to Live.

The air of Lower California is dry and pure and the atmosphere, except on the western coast, is marvelously clear. The narrowness of the peninsula, giving to the atmosphere a touch of the bracing air of the sea, and the dryness of the land combine to give the air an intense purity. There is probably no more healthful climate in the world than that of Lower California.

Illuminating Irritation.

Ida incidentally indicates interest in fees, Irving, impressionable, infatuated, infiduously invests. Ida's indulgence in fees inordinate, insatiable. Irving, impetuous, inaptly introduces impetuous innovations. Ida, instantly irate, in impatient irritation, indignantly, impeaches Irving's iterated infatuation, insinuating indifference, inurbant. Ida's infantile, inelegant incoherence illuminates Irving's innermost intelligence, inhibiting infatuation, intercepting intentions.—Youth's Companion.

Purity of Mind.

You can no more filter your mind into purity than you can compress it into calmness; you must keep it pure, and throw no stones into it, if you would have it quiet.—Ruskin.

Rather Slim Excuse.

Celia and Bobby disagreed, whereupon Celia slapped her brother. A wail brought their mother. Only after a long and severe reproof did the small girl's spirit melt and then she said: "Oh mamma, I'm sorry I slapped him. I didn't mean to. My hand slipped."

To Clean Brass Articles.

Do not throw away squeezed lemons; use them for cleaning brasses and dish covers. Put a pinch of whitening on the article to be cleaned, and rub it in well, using the lemon as a sponge. You will be surprised to see how much dirt you can remove in a very short time and with little trouble. Brasses cleaned in this way keep clean longer than when done with ordinary polish.

Lower California Cattle.

In addition to cattle, many excellent mules are raised in Lower California. Horses are rarely used. The faithful burro is the principal means of transportation. Except for a few thousand in La Pintera, there are no domestic sheep in the country. In the southern part there are numerous flocks of goats. The largest cattle ranch on the peninsula comprises almost 1,000,000 acres.

Tin Miners Have Privileges.

The men who work in the Cornish tin mines are a class by themselves, and all their differences are adjusted by the stannary courts, as they are called from the Latin word stannum, meaning tin. These curious courts have existed in their present form since the middle of the thirteenth century, and, in a simpler form, much earlier; and the miners claim to be free from all other jurisdiction, "except in matters affecting the land, life or limb."

Ethics and Epigram.

"There's nothing holier in heaven than your own little job," and "The man who fills his little niche on earth in the very best way that it can be filled, is as good as any angel in heaven," are two sayings which sound like different versions of the same epigram of Rev. Robert J. MacAlpine in his address to the Kiwanis club. Whether Pastor MacAlpine said both these things, or only one of them, he put a grand truth in a crisp form. Honest, efficient work is not only a worldly utility but a high moral function.—Buffalo Times.

War Cut Price of Diamonds.

In 1870, during the Franco-Prussian war, the value of diamonds was largely depreciated by the quantity offered for sale in London by French refugees.

First Sleeping Car.

A sleeping car was put into service on the Cumberland Valley railroad (now a part of the Pennsylvania railroad system) in 1830 or 1837, but was abandoned in 1843.

Headache Cure.

A teaspoonful of charcoal powder in half a glass of water, is a cure for sick headache, and relieves heartburn. The powder is difficult to mix with water; it assimilates better with milk, so that the quantity named should be worked to paste with a small quantity of milk; sufficient water to make the draught being added.

Horse That Keeps His Head.

When a horse suddenly finds a sled with four children on it in collision with him, rears up, comes down with one foot well out in front of the children and holds up the other till they scramble to safety, he literally gallops into everybody's heart. That's what a horse did recently in a Massachusetts town.—Our Dumb Animals.

St. John's Writings.

There is satisfactory evidence that St. John, the beloved brother of James and son of Zebedee, was the author of the Gospel, Epistles and Revelations ascribed to him. The Revelations were written during his exile on the island of Patmos; the Gospel and Epistles after his return under amnesty to Ephesus, where he was superior of the churches.

Proper Care of Parrots.

Parrots in the wild state live on seed and fruit and should, while in captivity, be fed as nearly as possible the same kind of food. They should be fed sunflower seed, hemp seed, boiled yellow corn, stale bread soaked in water, an occasional piece of apple or banana, roasted peanuts and dry crackers. Plenty of water and gravel should be kept in the cage. The parrot's cage should be cleaned every day.

Figures in the Moon.

Some keenly discerning people see a woman alongside the man in the moon and account for her presence there by her churning on Sunday while the "old gentleman" chopped the wood. A pretty eastern fancy is that the figure in the moon is that of Ina, who weaves the clouds into white cloth and who sent her husband back to earth by the rainbow ridge in order that death might not defile her heavenly home.

Sports, Or Goats?

Are we American people sports, or are we just plain goats?

European countries owe the United States ten billions of dollars, loaned to them during the war against Germany.

This money will soon be due, and it is intimated that the allies either can not or will not pay—they intimate the former, but we suspect the latter.

Our friends across the water, it seems, do not want to pay us until after they have collected the money from Germany. And when they do get the money from Germany it is even possible that they will suddenly discover some more urgent and pressing need for it.

Makes a fellow feel fine, doesn't it? Quite sporty, or goaty, whichever term pleases you.

Europe tells the United States it is short of sugar—it must have sugar.

We, oo, are short—very short—but we send it to them, hundreds of millions of pounds.

Of course that shoves up the price of what little we are able to buy ourselves. But that doesn't matter to us sports, or goats. We just revel in coughing up lively for the benefit of our dear friends across the water.

Why should we ask Europe to pay us the paltry ten billions of dollars they owe us? Would that the sporty, or goaty?

Why should we tell them they can't have our sugar, because we haven't enough ourselves for our canning, and our tables? Would a sport, or goat, be so ungenerous?

Why not give them everything they want, and thank them for taking it? Wouldn't that be quite sporty, or tremendously goaty?

Why not be genuine sports, or wholehearted goats, while we are about it?

For isn't it quite jolly to be a sport or supremely comforting to be a goat?

You know!

Aspiration.

An aspiration is a joy forever, a possession as solid as a landed estate, a fortune which we can never exhaust and which gives us year by year a revenue of pleasurable activity.
—Robert Louis Stevenson.

Jap Children Make Toys.

Japanese children are responsible for a great deal of the cheap toys which are sent from that country to this. The children are rounded up in groups of a dozen or more and they devote nearly all their time to the work for which they receive a few cents a day.

Safety First in Pictures.

The stops, look and listen signs along the Chinese railroads usually consist of pictures showing the dangers of trespassing on the tracks. Inscriptions sometimes accompany the pictures, but the inscriptions can be read by comparatively few persons; the pictures can be understood by all.

Far Age Computation.

To compute the age and birth month of a person ask the person to think of his age, multiply by 10, add 25, multiply by 10, add the number of the month in which he was born, subtract 250. The first two numerals will be the person's age and the last two the month in which he was born.

How to Rewind a Curtain Spring.

Do you know that when the spring in the window shade is loosened, all you have to do is to pull the shade down its entire length, take it out of the fixtures, roll it up smoothly, put it back in the fixtures, and it will have its original spring? How many wire hairpins have you twisted trying to rewind a curtain spring?

Malady of Doubt.

There are plenty of people who think that to doubt everything shows common sense and shrewdness, whereas it may indicate only a narrow-mindedness. But there is an uneasy doubting of one's self which, if not resisted, may become almost a disease. Often, though perfectly sure that we did lock the door, or deliver an injunction, or put a memorandum in our pocket, we nourish the doubt all day, or turn out our pocket on our way to work. One symptom of this malady is the hurried, worried search for a missing article in every place save where it usually is, and the astonishment at finding it there.

Duty to Posterity.

I would submit to a severe discipline, and to go without many things cheerfully, for the good and happiness of the human race in the future. Each one of us should do something, however small, toward that great end.
—Richard Jefferies.

America and England.

The war of independence was virtually a second English civil war. The ruin of the American cause would have been also the ruin of the constitutional cause in England; and a patriotic Englishman may reverse the memory of Patrick Henry and George Washington not less justly than the patriotic American.—John Morley, on Burke.

To The Citizens of Lancaster, Ky.

Honorable Mayor, City Council and People of Lancaster, Ky:—

Whereas, the franchise now held by us is void by reason of being in conflict with the State Constitution, and

Whereas, we have no franchise for operating our plant in the City of Lancaster, Ky., because the same is void as aforesaid, the City Council of the City of Lancaster, Ky., and the public generally are hereby notified that we will on August 1st, 1920, or as soon thereafter as practical, move all our poles and electrical equipment from the streets of the city of Lancaster, Ky.

This notice is given as a legal notice, as we understand that reasonable notice must be given before we can remove said property and discontinue said plant.

We are willing to do anything we can to co-operate with the city in securing a franchise for the purpose of furnishing electric light and power to the citizens of the city, but we can not continue it further without expensive additional equipment, and this we can not do at the present rates and without a legal franchise protecting us in our rights.

Done this April 26th, 1920.

Respectfully submitted,
BASTIN BROTHERS,
By H. V. Bastin.

It Would Help.

A forum for the interchange of ideas would be a good thing for this town.

We have many people whose brains are constantly on the alert, who see daily the weak spots in our local life, and who have practical solutions in mind for their improvement.

These people might be brought together, ideas publicly exchanged, and the best plans adopted and put into execution.

There is always some condition in this town that needs improvement, and there is always some one in this town who has a simple and practical method of doing it.

Why drift with the tide when smooth sailing is better?

We have touched on this subject before in our columns. We repeat it now with emphasis.

The delights of summer are surpassingly great, especially when a bull mosquito fastens itself on the back of your neck and refuses to let go.

Why Not This Town?

In all probability Henry Ford has advanced the most practical idea yet for keeping young men on the farms.

Henry suggests that we build factories throughout the farming sections, give these young men employment during the winter months when there is no farm work to be done, and shut them down in the summer when the men are needed on the farms. It is a sane, sensible and eminently practical suggestion. It is one easy of attainment.

It could be done in this community as well as any other place.

We have the brains necessary to organize, operate and market the products of such a factory. We have the capital required for such a purpose.

What more can we ask?

Nothing—except for our enterprising farmers and townsmen to get together, take the bit in their teeth, and go ahead.

Are we equal to the occasion?

Dotheboys Hall.

In "Nicholas Nickleby," one of Dickens' best novels, occurs the name, Dotheboys hall. It is the name of a boarding school in the north of England, kept by a heartless villain named Squeers, a place where boys were taken in and "done for." Squeers' system of tuition consisted of alternate beating and starving. In Dickens' time, it is said, such schools existed, and his account of the one over which Squeers presided did much to bring about their extinction.

This Bank has this day declared its semi-annual dividend No. 110 of 4 per cent and added $20,000.00 to its surplus fund, making it an Honor Roll Bank. It has distributed in Dividends to its stockholders over $777,500.00. Charter No. 1493 being the 6th oldest bank south of the Mason and Dixon line. It has never passed a semi-annual dividend since organization a thing of which few banks can boast. When financial storms swept this country on more than two occasions from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and institutions were closing their doors, under the skillful guidance of its officers and board of directors it was enabled to furl its sails and ride out the storm in safety. Our motto in the future as in the past, "Safety First". We are equipped with a Spherical manganese solid screw door safe, in a steel lined vault. We have also installed a new burglar proof Andelusia steel vault door of the best make.

We appreciate the assistance and good will of our friends who during these years have done so much to make our prosperity possible, and we respectfully request their influence in our behalf in the future.

Very Respectfully,

Death Rate per 1,000 Population 12.8
In the above you will note a marked decline in the death rate from all preventable diseases, with the exception of diphtheria, for which there has been an increase over 1917 and 1918.

Diphtheria is one of the few cases for which there is a specific treatment, and if given early enough and in large enough doses, is a practical specific in almost every case. Increase in the death rate means that physicians are not called early enough or that they are not taking advantage of the cheaper anti-toxin kept on hand by every County Health Officer in the State and supplied free to the indigent by practically every Fiscal Court in the State.

The Beauty of Woman.

Years ago, when the adults of the town were children, our mothers and our grandmothers and our aunts could hardly be induced to enter a beauty shop or purchase cosmetics from over the drug counter. It was considered vain and frivolous, and society did not approve.

In those days women aged much more rapidly than they do today, and the wrinkles of time were in evidence early in life.

But today it is different, and it is well that it is so.

A man marries a woman because he is attracted to her and forms a lasting affection for her. It is but natural that he should take a pride in her beauty and in the charm of her character, and any harmless means that will aid in retaining either is more than justifiable in its employment.

The woman of the home takes pride in having that home neat and attractive, and spends many hours in adding little touches which she knows are appealing to the man of her choice.

Is there any reason why she should be less particular in preserving her beauty of person than she is in retaining that of the home?

There is today no reason why a normally healthy woman should not retain much of the brightness and bloom of youth even to the brink of the grave. Certainly it is more rejuvenating to her and more pleasing to those who know and love her.

Do not criticize the woman who uses artificial means to retain her beauty of person on a par with that of her soul.

It is possible she is showing evidences of wisdom not possessed by some of her critics, for in the eyes of mankind the preservation of her charm is justifiable in every way.

The Paper Famine.

Paper famine is forcing newspapers and periodicals all over the country to combine, reduce size, raise advertising and subscription rates, or in many cases to go out of business altogether. Numerous Sunday papers now sell at 10 cents or more. The Ladies' Home Journal sends us its new advertising rate card and you may be interested to know what that high-toned monthly charges for its advertising space. The rate is $12 a line or $168 an inch. A full page in colors costs $11,000 and if it is the back cover page it runs up to $15,000. These rates are for one insertion. The Saturday Evening Post is $10 a line, and $10,000 for last cover page. How many pages would you like at these rates?—The Pathfinder.

"Exide" Starting and Lighting BATTERY

—the battery that by hard, sturdy, powerful and persistent service in motor cars all over the country has earned itself the title of "the Giant that lives in a Box."

The "Exide" Battery is a giant of the most dependable sort. Every ounce of it represents strength and endurance; every detail of its construction has been proved right in many years of practical performance. It was designed and is manufactured by the largest maker of storage batteries in the world.

Put an "Exide" Giant's power behind your starting and lighting system and have done with guesswork.

Inch for inch and pound for pound, there is more power and punch in the "Exide" Giant than in any other starting battery.

ALDRIDGE & MARSEE

BILLIE'S CHANCE

By MILDRED WHITE

She was the most wonderful girl he had ever seen! She was "the girl" Billie told himself; all this, as he sat in desperate mood, on his own porch step. All his life he had been waiting for just such a girl, and now that she had come, he could make no progress whatever in winning her, or even in voicing his affection. He raked the gravel wrathfully as he thought of the many opportunities which had heretofore been thrust upon him, for wooing hours. Yes, thrust upon him, Billie reflected, by willing parents. For Billie's bank roll was substantial.

Billie's family, beyond reproach, Billie himself good to look upon and equally "good" to talk to. And now that he was in earnest, deeply, deeply earnest—he was balked in his love-making intention at every turn. Billie felt that he could not survive another day without making love to Connie. He had held his tongue in check just as long as he could.

Connie was too pretty, too altogether charming to be held from him longer. Yet, how he was going to express his feeling for the girl in the presence of her forbidding mother was more than Billie could figure out. Mrs. Webster's frown, proximity alone, he was sure, would freeze the words on his lips, and Mrs. Webster was never absent during Billie's calls at least, from her only daughter's side. Brandon had warned him of this when Billie requested the introduction to Connie.

"I'll never be two company," Brandon had said, "Mother is always on the job. This mother intends to keep little daughter her willing slave in subjection. Wiser and braver men than you have failed there, Billie."

But still Billie had persisted; to find his friend's warning true. His cleverly planned invitations for drives or theaters had all been accepted in mother's name—mother always went too, this was understood.

Billie confessed to himself that Connie had a remarkable way of conversing with one—in confidence as it were—with her eyes. According to the luminous eyes of Connie, her mother's presence between them, was as great a regret to herself as it was to him.

And according to the twinkly eyes of Connie, she admired immensely his clever, though useless maneuvers, to be rid of that presence. And lately—only very lately—according to the soft and wistful eyes of Connie, she knew an eager skin to his own, in waiting to hear the words that he so yearned to speak.

With a gesture of weary despair, Billie arose from the porch step and proceeded "Webster ward," to fulfill an engagement to take Connie and her mother to a concert. He smiled, comforted, anticipating the girl's nearness during the performance.

If he could be quick enough to push the old lady in the first seat, Connie would sit next to him. But alas! Billie was not quick enough. It was Connie, whom her mother's directing arm, put into the first seat.

No Billie sulked throughout the concert, and Billie further sulked as Mrs. Webster, upon the homeward walk, insinuated herself between Connie and himself, a relying arm upon either.

A strong breeze coming up in the early spring night, blew dust in their faces, and Billie felt a savage delight in forcing his charge against the gale. Her skirts buffeted her steps, and as Connie hastily withdrew an assisting arm in order to cling to her own hat, Mrs. Webster's now straw turban was merrily lifted by the breeze and carried swiftly off in the darkness. "Catch it Connie," she gasped, and Connie dashed off in pursuit.

Then as Mrs. Webster vainly peered about in the windswept gloom, Billie with a shouted word ran in an opposite direction.

"We will round it up," he promised; but everything which lured as a shadow hat, proved to be no hat at all, and accidentally or purposely, which, I cannot say, Billie and Connie met in the darkness at the end of the Webster lawn behind a Webster tree. And Billie, believing that "it's an ill wind that blows nobody good," proceeded to capture his own good and Connie's slight figure, as well, at the same time.

"No use looking further," Billie murmured inarticulately, "too dark, too breezy. That's gone to Jericho by this time."

"But mother," whispered the girl, "she's coming, I hear her."

"Let her come," answered Billie wickedly, "we are harder to find back here than the hat."

And then Billie told his love story! It was eloquently told—and very well—if shyly received.

"Connie!" came a querulous voice, "Oh, Connie! where are you?"

"Mother thought a lot of that hat," the girl said into Billie's coat lapel. "I really think that you might get a long way into mother's graces, Billie, if you could bring it back in the morning."

"But, darling!" objected Billie, "if I could find that hat, what would it look like in the morning. It's raining now."

"Mother bought the hat at Miss Wolcott's," Connie insinuated. "Miss Wolcott would know where to find another like it, Billie."

And that is the very way that Billie made the grand opening for his victory.

As sure as you are a foot high—you will like this Camel Turkish and Domestic blend!

YOU never got such cigarette-contentment as Camels hand you. Camels quality and expert blend of choice Turkish and choice Domestic Tobaccos make this goodness possible—and make you prefer this Camel blend to either kind of tobacco smoked straight!

Camels mellow-mildness is a revelation! Smoke them with freedom without tiring your taste! They leave no unpleasant cigarette aftertaste nor unpleasant cigarette odor!

Give Camels every test—then compare them puff-for-puff with any cigarette in the world!

With the republican and the democratic candidates both in the field there will be reams printed about their respective virtues and occupations. Take both the good and the bad of either at a fifty per cent valuation and you will come somewhere near the normal and mental status of the man, for neither party could elect either a saint or a devil president of the United States. The adherents of each party have as much common sense for that.

For once in its life fashionable society in the big cities has done something worthy of general commendation. It has adopted a broad brimmed hat for summer wear which affords ample protection for the eyes in the hot sun. City dandies, if they persevere, may in time approach something near to the normal application of brains enjoyed by her sisters of the country towns and the rural districts.

Encyclopaedias, we admit, contain a world of knowledge, but if you want the best and at first hand just marry a widow.

A town in Peru has become so infested with rats the officials have voted to destroy all but six houses in order to get rid of them. That gives us an idea. We might try blowing up the country in order to get rid of the unwelcome holshewiki, but probably it wouldn't work.

CIRCUS DAY.

The Rhoda Royal The Grandest and Best Shows Almost Here

The all absorbing topic of the day seems to be "are you going to the circus?" The answer on every hand seems to be "why certainly," and when one stops to reflect over the fact that the Rhoda Royal Shows are the largest that ever toured the United States it is surprising that one is going to avail himself of the opportunity to see this massive amusement enterprise. No amusement whether tented or otherwise, has ever caused the preliminary enthusiasm throughout Garrard county that the Rhoda Royal shows have by the announcement that they would appear at Lancaster, Tuesday, July 13th.

In view of the fact that this wonderful zoological, ethnological, equine and hippodromic exhibition is the superior of all similar enterprises, employing, as it does, more cars to transport the more people to conduct its various departments, more horses, wagons, larger tents, and the greatest number of performers ever amassed under one management, it is not surprising that it is to-day the world's representative show.

We suggest to out-of-town people the advisability of coming to town early so as not to miss the grand street parade that takes place daily at 10 a. m., rain or shine. It contains five bands of music, ten kinds of music in all, including the grand golden steam callopes, band of real Scottish bagpipers, and several musical novelties absolutely new to the American people. There is a whole caravan of massive carved cages, gilded chariots, mounted knights and ladies, a score of comical clowns, herds of elephants, camels, midget ponies and the finest collection of highly-bred horses ever brought to this country. After all, the parade is only preliminary to the most remarkable exhibition of acrobatic, hippodromic and zoological marvels ever collected by man. Will Exhibit at Bastin field, Lexington Avenue.

THE WILD CAT IS WILD

It Really Doesn't Matter, As the Untamed Feline Is of No Account anyhow.

In spite of many academic discussions, nobody really cares what makes the wild cat because the wild cat is no good even when he is tame. But it makes all the difference in the world whether useful livestock is trained or wild. The finest colt in the world, product of the best draft stock, is of little use to a farmer unless he has been broken to harness, is bridle wise and tractable.

A cow may be a champion milk producer but she is of comparatively little value if nobody can milk her. A setter may carry the blue blood of Count Gladstone and have a nose for lads that is unequalled but nobody wants to hunt behind him unless he has felt the jerk of the trainers choke line and learned not only to find birds but give his owner an opportunity to bag them.

It is exactly the same way with dollars. The country today is overrun with wild dollars. They are as numerous as the herds of wild horses and buffaloes that used to roam the plains of the west and just about as useful. If you capture them, all you can do with them is lock them up in a cage to keep them from getting out, destroying your financial fences and ramping your garden plots. You cannot even handle them without their getting away or doing you some harm.

But if you tame them and train them by continued and patient and regular investment in safe securities such as Government Savings Stamps, Treasury Savings Certificates or Liberty Bonds at present advantageous market prices you can make them work for you faithfully and well. Investment is the only known method of subduing wild dollars but it must be safe investment. Like every other animal trainer you must have patience and the lesson must be repeated until it is thoroughly learned.

A Tractor Farm--145 Acres
FOR J. M. McGRAW, IN LINCOLN COUNTY, AT

AUCTION

Friday, July 23,

AT TEN O'CLOCK,

LOCATION—On Short Pike, 1-8 of a mile from the Danville and Hustonville Pike, 6 miles from Danville, 6 miles from Stanford, 2 miles of Graded School, 2 miles from Q. and C. Railroad, in good neighborhood, yard fronts right on the pike, is a beautiful home and you are sure to like it.

Will be sold in three tracts.

TRACT NO. 1—105 acres, with splendid 7 room two story dwelling, fine stock barn, 4 acre tobacco barn, large double crib, garage, best dairy in the County, other out buildings, all in first class repair; everlasting water, 2 good orchards. In cultivation as follows: 40 acres in corn, 20 acres in wheat sown to clover, 12 acres of oats, 12 acres of meadow, 2½ acres of tobacco, remainder in grass.

TRACT NO. 2—20 acres, good 3 room house, good orchard, everlasting water, 8 acres in corn, one acre in tobacco, balance in blue grass.

TRACT NO. 3—20 acres, unimproved, all in corn.

Each tract faces on the pike and two or more tracts can be had together to get the size farm you want. This farm produces well and somebody will buy a bargain. We have sold two farms for J. M. McGraw at auction, and he is the kind we like to do business with. Mr. McGraw is like we are, he puts them up, turns them loose and somebody buys a farm.

Don't overlook this one. Spend the week with us. Auction sales every day this week.

Possession January 1, 1921, or earlier if the purchaser desires. Will be sold on easy terms.

The Farm of Will Matheny at

To The HIGH DOLLAR On WEDNESDAY, JULY 21st,

AT 10:00 O'CLOCK,

LOCATION—Lincoln county, on the Ottenheim pike, 5 miles south of Stanford, in good neighborhood, close to schools and churches, quarter of mile from L. and N. Railroad Station. It is admitted that Will Matheny is one of the very best farmers in Lincoln County, and the condition of this farm and improvements and everything about the farm proves it. Here is one of the best money makers that we have on our list. Matheny has petted and taken care of the farm and it is ready for the next man to make money on. Fine tobacco land; sugar tree and black walnut. Improvements modern and up to date. 2 story 8 room dwelling, 2 halls and 2 porches, metal roof, electric lights, water works, bath room; a new house with modern equipment. One three room tenant house, one stock barn, one 12 acre tobacco barn, new garage and all other out buildings. Cistern at house and at barn and fine young orchard. 12 acres in tobacco, 26 acres in wheat, 60 acres in corn, 70 acres in blue grass, a lot of it virgin soil, balance in clover and timothy meadow.

About 125 acres will be sold with the improvements, the balance divided into several tracts with good frontage on pike.

There ought to be a "BUNCH" of buyers on this farm as every fellow who sees it will want it, but the other fellow might not be able to get there so you come and secure a bargain. Take our word for it, very few like this one on the market. Will be sold for possession January 1, 1921, with the usual fall seedling privileges and on easy terms.

Remember this land is up and selling to the high dollar. All you have to do is to bid last.

For further particulars see Mr. Matheny on the premises, or W. E. Moss or R. H. Dever at Danville, or W. A. Dickerson or George Swinebroad at my Lancaster office, or

JUST KIDS

By JENNIE LITTLE.

(Copyright, 1920, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

As the car swung round the curve and stopped, the motorman almost thought he was seeing double, for beside the white post stood a small boy and girl, as like as two peas in a pod. The conductor, smarting from the sarcastic comments of an old lady whom he had carried past her street, changed his scowl to a grin as he swung them up with a "Well, well, look who's here! Does your mother know you're out?"

"No, 'cause we're visiting Gramma," piped up the feminine portion of the party, who was the acknowledged spokesman in public, for Boba was the victim of a most untimely lisp.

As they passed down the aisle of the hot car, the listless or grumpy expression on the other passengers' faces changed as if by magic. They squeezed into a vacant space beside a mother trying vainly to amuse her fretting baby, who promptly stopped his wailing, and with a gurgle of mischief made a pass at Betty's curls.

"How long have you had him?" she asked, with a delightful giggle.

"He had his first birthday last week," smiled the mother.

"Oh, my, hasn't he lasted good?" was the admiring remark, as she cast a most unfavorable look of comparison at the battered features of a doll held tightly under one arm. "I only got Bella last Christmas. We've got a new baby brother home."

Boba burrowed deep into newly acquired back pockets, the pride of his heart, taking as much time as possible, that none might overlook the existence of said pockets.

"Two marbles," he announced briefly.

Just then a young man stepped on the car, and Betty halted him as an old friend.

"The twin terrors, are you alive?" he exclaimed, his eyes searching eagerly about for a third party. "You're not alone?"

"Yes," said Betty, "but it's all right. It hasn't been a nice day at Gramma's. Aunt Alice cried hard last night when she thought I was asleep, and she hasn't laughed or played with us today. Boba was bad, and when he upset the milk bottle in the refrigerator, Gramma said, 'Children I'masperated. Go out and amuse yourselves till I call you.' So we started to water the lawn, and how did we know Gramma was coming round the corner just as we turned the hose that way? Then he told us to go straight off the lawn, so we took a walk down the street."

"We stopped to speak to a big mooley-cow looking through the fence, and she blew both her old horns at us. So we thought we'd ride a little way, till it's time for Gramma to want us back."

Poor Jack Barnes was as uncomfortable as a mere man could be under this running fire of explanation, and, red of face, signalled for the next stop.

"You'll go right back now," he said, firmly, and marshalled them off, followed by the delighted smiles of Betty's audience.

"I hope you are not going to be cross, too," said the engaging young winner. "Guess everybody got out the wrong side of the bed this morning. Why didn't you come to see Aunt Alice last night? Then maybe she wouldn't have cried."

When they reached the gate, three distracted relatives came rushing from as many directions, but Jack turned to the grandparents.

"I found these twinsters having a joy ride on a car, so I made them about-face in case you wanted them."

"The little rebels," cried the old gentleman; "they ought to be spanked for giving us the scare of our lives." But Grandma thankfully folded them to her heart.

As they went to the house, Jack turned stiffly to the young lady, who, after her first cry of welcome, had not spoken.

"I didn't intend to force myself upon you again, after what happened last night, but I really would like to hear your reasons for letting that cad Hastings take you to the dance after you had promised me. If it was just a way of letting me down easy, why all right, of course."

"Well," answered that young person, coldly, "when I saw you an hour before devoting your time to a beautiful stranger, I certainly didn't think you needed my company, and the roadster will not accommodate three."

"Daylight breaks over me," cried Jack. "My sister arrived on the 5:30, and I was showing her about town a bit, and telling her about the finest girl in the world, who had up often wished to meet her. And you thought—oh, Alice Camden, I guess it's up to you to ask me in to supper and begin where we left off before this big mistake."

That night as the young adventurers were being put to bed, Alice led Jack to the foot of the stairs, where Betty's voice floated down—"and bless mamma and Daddy, and the new baby, and make Boba a better boy tomorrow." Even a worm will turn, and from the next room came a defiant challenge: "Mind your own bittineth. I can pray for myself!"

There was a pause, fraught with great possibilities, then the prayer was concluded with a voice of Pharisaical sweetness:

"I'm going to be good, anyway, Lord, but you can help me a little if you feel like it!"

DISSOLUTION SALE

15
Days
ONLY

"The Chickens Will Come Home To Roost"
I'VE GOT TO PAY MAMA

I bought her entire interest in the JOSEPH MERCANTILE COMPANY, Lancaster, Ky.

Complete reorganization of the Joseph Mercantile Co.
But same will be carried on with the honest business principals of the old concern.

Days

I have bought out lock, stock and barrel, the entire interest of my mother who now retires from the firm, leaving me entire control of the business. Taking over the entire business, I am confronted with the imperative obligation of paying for what I have bought.

MAMA—and I say it with all reverence—wants her money, as you and I want ours. It is the fruits of her labors, the realization of her life's work that she wants—the wherewithall—to enable her to spend the balance of her days in comfort. It belongs to her, she earned it and she wants it. I have therefore, decided on this means of raising the money—to conduct a sale—a bonifide dissolution sale—that will arouse the people of this and surrounding counties.

And right here good friends, let me remind you and emphasize the fact that we do not hold sales every week. I am not like the Shepherd Boy—There are no false alarms here.

There is a reason for this sale—I admit it and my shoulder is to the wheel.

Come then to the Biggest Merchandise Feast Garrard and Surrounding Counties has ever known.

PUBLIC SPENDING LESS.
U. S. Treasury Department Official Says
Public Has Awakened to Necessity of Saving.

According to statements issued by the United States Treasury Department, people are rapidly getting over their postwar extravagance. It is noticeable throughout the retail world, that people are buying with less frequency and greater discrimination. It is to this fact that the economists are ascribing the threatened fall in price, said to be a near certainty. Apparently, the public has only just begun to rouse to the fact that high prices are directly traceable to its own desire to get rid of money, and that they will fall only when the public itself gets tired of paying excessive prices and throwing away good money.

Another indication of the awakening of thrift tendency lies in the increase of Government bonds of low denominations. Banks and brokerages throughout the country are being flooded with inquiries for these bonds and other small stocks of an assured nature—Exchange.

MEXICO WOMEN INTERESTED

They Have Big Meeting
Of Federated Club Members and Make Special Feature of Thrift.

The Club women of Mexico, Mo., are greatly interested in the Thrift and Savings movement sponsored by the United States Treasury Department.

Last Monday the Federated Women's Club held an unusually interesting session that was presided over by Mrs. William Rufus Jackson, wife of Mexico's postmaster.

Representatives of nearly every woman's club in the central part of Missouri were present. Several numbers were recitations by children, who took their selections from the verse and feature stories appearing in the Savings Herald, a paper published by the Savings Division of the Treasury Department at St. Louis.

"It's not a bit interesting. I did not instruct them, did I?" replied the former Food Administrator with a broad smile.

CHIROPRACTIC

Office Hours 9 to 11 A. M.

Slight subluxations at this point will cause so-called headaches, eye disease, deafness, epilepsy, vertigo, insomnia, wry neck, facial paralysis, locomotor ataxia, etc.

A slight subluxation of a vertebra in this part of the spine is the cause of so-called throat trouble, neuralgia, pain in the shoulders and arms, goitre, nervous prostration, la grippe, dizziness, bleeding from nose, disorder of gums, catarrh, etc.

The arrow head marked No. 3 locates the part of the spine wherein subluxations will cause so-called bronchitis, felons, pain between the shoulder blades, rheumatism of the arms and shoulders, hay fever, writers' cramp, etc.

A vertebral subluxation at this point causes so-called nervousness, heart trouble, asthma, pneumonia, tuberculosis, difficult breathing, other lung troubles, etc.

Stomach and liver troubles, enlargement of the spleen, pleurisy, and a score of other troubles, so-called, are caused by subluxations in this part of the spine, sometimes so light as to remain unnoticed by others except the trained Chiropractor.

Here we find the cause of so-called gall stones, dyspepsia, of upper bowels, fevers, shingles, hiccough, worms, etc.

Bright's disease, diabetes, floating kidney, skin disease, leish, eruptions and other diseases, so-called, are caused by nerves being pinched in the spinal openings at this point.

Regulations of such troubles as so-called appendicitis, peritonitis, lamboago, etc., follow Chiropractic adjustments at this point.

Why have so-called constipation, rectal troubles, sciatica, etc., when Chiropractic adjustments at this part of the spine will remove the cause?

A slight subluxation here will likewise produce so-called sciatica, together with many "diseases" of pelvis and lower extremities.

FOOD RIOTS Becoming More Serious In Germany.

A despatch from Berlin to the New York World, telling of food riots in Germany, says:

The riots, which started in the industrial town of Osnabrueck, and thence jumped to Bremen, Ulmstadt, Magdeburg and several smaller places, today, broke out in Darmstadt, Magdeburg and several smaller towns, all taking the form of a public protest against the high cost of living by angry buyers, chiefly incensed by the high price of food. But not stopping there, in many cases the ringleaders of the mobs held forced bargain sales at what they consider fair reduced prices, though more often the profiteers simply solved the high cost of living problem by plundering.

In some places the riots did not stop at store and selling out food stores, but cleaned out shoe stores, even department stores. In Geseesmuende, near Bremerhaven the crowd captured a local department store and sold shoes priced at 700 marks (normally $144 for 50) for 50 marks (normally $6.00) and $11.50, and suits at 50 marks. The high cost of living situation, in taking the form of riots, is further aggravated by the popular irritation over the newest tax provision which has just become effective, requiring that 10 per cent be deducted by employers from all wages and salaries and paid into the state's coffers on account of the income tax.

There is serious talk of tax riots in Berlin, where every wage earner is sure that the employer will not carry the burden of the new tax. Various parts of Germany, and indeed the whole country, are in a state of unrest.

VICTORY MEDALS Being Distributed.

All Who Served In War Will Receive Decoration.

(Elizabethtown News)

The Victory Medal, which is to be issued to every soldier, sailor, marine, field clerk, or nurse who served honorably for any period from April 6, 1917, to November 11, 1918, are being distributed. Executed in a toned bronze, the medal was designed by the celebrated American sculptor, James Earle Fraser, of New York, under the supervision of the Commission of Fine Arts. In addition to the medal there have been designed thirteen combat or major operation clasps, and a defensive sector clasp which go on the ribbon with the medal and also five overseas service clasps for troops not entitled to battle clasps.

Statistics compiled since the armistice disclosed that 4,765,000 men and women are eligible for the award which will be made thru the Adjutant General of the Army.

To obtain medals it is necessary for every applicant to follow these instructions:

All officers and men desiring the medal will get in touch with the nearest recruiting officer or with the commanding officer of the nearest army post, camp or station.

Officers in charge at these various posts will determine after examination of discharge papers the class of medal and the number of battle clasps to which the applicant is entitled and forward the application to the Adjutant General for further information if not properly supported.

The original discharge papers will be returned back to the man and the commanding officer of the Quartermaster Corps, Philadelphia, Pa., ordered to send the medal to the recipient.

Should an applicant not live in a town where there is a post, camp or recruiting station, he should apply by mail to the nearest post or camp for necessary forms. If his discharge papers or other records do not substantiate his claims for battle clasps or other additional decorations, they should be forwarded to the Adjutant General of the Army, where a search of the records of his organization will be made and the exact medal and battle clasps determined.

Nurses will apply to the surgeon general's office direct.

A Favorable Sign In Kentucky.

The election of Joseph E. Boggs, the present State Highway Commissioner, as State Engineer, is one of the best things that has happened recently in Kentucky. He was chosen by the State Commissioners appointed by Governor Morrow in spite of the fact that Mr. Boggs is a Democrat. The bipartisan Commission very wisely decided that politics should not enter into road building in Kentucky and that only ability and fitness should have any weight in the selection of the State Engineer. Mr. Boggs has proven his thorough competency. Any other man would have been an experiment. Mr. Boggs is in touch, not only with the entire road situation in Kentucky, but also with the people. Any new man selected would have taken a year to get where Mr. Boggs is now, even if he had the same degree of competency. If Mr. Boggs had been a Republican we would have favored his election because he has proven himself a thoroughly competent engineer.

Roads and schools are the two things which must mark the progress and advancement of Kentucky, and the injection of politics into either of them would be a harmful and injurious influence. The News congratulates the State Commission upon the selection of Mr. Boggs, as they have by this act started out with the confidence and the respect of the people. —Elizabethtown News.

Make Your Home
a Cheerful Home

You can't expect folks to be happy and contented where the home is in half-darkness and permeated by the smell of smoky lamps. Every member of your family is entitled to all the bright electric light which city folks have. If somebody asked you to buy an expensive plant that simply furnished light and no more, you might have some good arguments against such a purchase, but when you think of a lighting plant that is also a plant capable of operating any and every small machine on your place, that is another matter.

Genco Light

is such a plant. In addition to being a perfect electric lighting plant, it has a pulley by which machines can be run while charging your batteries. When this is done, your lights cost practically nothing. Genco Light is such a positive labor saver that owners figure that this power practically takes the place of farm help. It certainly does enable the help to do more; or less help to do the same work. Genco Light is not a luxury—it is a servant that will increase production and pay for itself in actual dollars and cents. You really owe it to yourself to call here with your wife and see this wonderful plant at work. May we expect you?

PALATABLE AND WHOLESOME POTATO REAL STANDBY OF HOUSEWIFE WHO ECONOMIZES

Irish Potatoes Are Easy to Prepare and in Season All the Year.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The explorer, whoever he was, who introduced the potato to the civilized world, deserves even at this late date a ringing vote of thanks from all those who are trying to serve three square meals a day to their families and not go bankrupt. Potatoes are high in comparison with other days, but not as high as meat. The potato is not a substitute for meat because starch and not protein is its main substance, yet it is a food which possesses much nourishment and is palatable, wholesome, and "filling." Where economy or health makes it necessary to reduce the amount of meat eaten, potatoes can well be used to form the base of the main dish served at a meal.

In the following recipes, which have been tried out in the home-economics kitchen of the United States department of agriculture, potatoes either help to make a little meat go a long way or else form the base of a palatable dish which contains no meat.

Potatoes With Cheese and Green Pepper.

2 cups diced cooked potatoes 1/2 teaspoon pepper
1 green pepper cooked and chopped
1 tablespoon fat 1/2 cup grated American cheese
1/2 cup milk 1/2 cup bread crumbs
1 teaspoon salt 1/2 cup butter
Make the sauce, using the fat, flour, milk, and seasoning. Mix the potato and the green pepper with the white sauce and cheese. Put in a baking dish and cover with the bread crumbs and brown in a hot oven.

Canned red pepper or pimiento can be used in place of the green pepper.

Potato Souffle.

3 tablespoons fat 1 teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons potato starch or flour 1/2 teaspoon pepper
1/2 cup milk or potato water 1/2 cup onion juice
1 cup diced potatoes 2 eggs whites, beaten
1 egg yolk, well beaten
Mix ingredients in order given and bake until firm in greased, covered baking dish in slow oven. This quantity serves five persons.

Potato Omelet.

1 cup mashed potatoes 1 tablespoon cream or milk
1/2 teaspoon pepper 1 teaspoon salt
3 eggs
Wash eggs, and separate the whites and yolks. Add the yolks to the potatoes and beat until there are no lumps. Season with onion juice, if desired, and chopped parsley. Beat the whites until stiff and fold into the potato mixture. Put into a well-greased frying pan and bake in oven until brown. Then turn and fold on hot platter. Serve at once.

Potato and Cheese Molds.
2 cups mashed potatoes 1/2 cup milk
4 tablespoons grated 1 teaspoon salt cheese
Melt fat in saucepan, add potatoes, and mix well; then add the milk and half the cheese and seasoning. Put into a greased baking dish, small ramekins, or baking cups, sprinkle the rest of the cheese on top and bake in a fairly quick oven about ten minutes.

Potato and Egg Mold.

2 cups mashed potatoes 1 cup egg sauce
Mix the potatoes with the egg sauce and season. Put in baking dish or baking cups and bake until lightly browned. The egg sauce is made as follows:
Make a cream sauce by mixing the potato starch with the melted fat, combining with the milk, and cooking until thickened. Add the finely chopped egg. If potato starch is not available cornstarch may be used instead.

Potato Thieft.

1 cup milk 1/2 cup salt
1/2 cup potato starch 1/2 cup pepper
1/2 cup butter 1 hard-boiled egg
1/2 cup fat
Line a dish around the sides with mashed potatoes, prepared as for the table, then fill with minced lamb or veal or other left-over meat, well seasoned; cover over top with mashed potatoes, and crisp cross with a knife. Put in oven and brown. Left-over meat and potatoes can be used.

Potato and Nut Sausage.

2 cups mashed potatoes 1/2 teaspoon pepper
1/2 cup milk 1/2 cup salt
1/2 cup potato starch 1/2 cup pepper
1/2 cup butter 1 hard-boiled egg
1/2 cup fat
To the mashed potatoes add enough milk to bind them. Put nuts in boiling water to loosen skins, remove skins, and put nuts through meat grinder. Mix nuts and potatoes thoroughly and season well. Add well-beaten eggs to potato mixture. Form into sausages, four them well, put in to greased pan, and put a small piece of salt pork on top of each sausage. Bake in a fairly hot oven until brown (about 45 minutes). Serve with tomato sauce.

MANY OPPORTUNITIES TO EARN MUCH MONEY

Home Industries, Peculiar to Locality, Are Encouraged.

Young Texas Girl Engaged by New York Business Man to Prepare Fig Preserves for Eastern Market—Work in Other Lines.

Many opportunities for making money come to girls who belong to the clubs organized by the United States department of agriculture and the state agriculture colleges. Home industries, which are peculiar to their locality or particularly adapted to it, are especially encouraged. In some sections of the South where long pine needles and grapefruit abound the girls make attractive baskets from the pine needles and fill them with candied grapefruit peel, jars of grapefruit marmalade, or some other native sweet, and sell them in the winter to tourists.

Harris county, Texas, produces figs. A club girl who lives there learned, through her club, how to make delicious fig preserves. Last November a New York business man, desiring to secure a superior fig preserve to put on the market, went to the demonstration agent of Harris county and asked if she had in her clubs some one competent and willing to do such work. The extension worker knew of several, but the girl who excelled the rest in the art was young—too young, she feared, to carry on so large an undertaking. She was so well qualified, however, in every other way, that the man decided to have an interview with her. The sight and taste of her delicious preserves decided the question and the girl was engaged.

A market for these fig preserves is now being built up in New York on the strength of the samples that could be put up at so late a date.

PLAN TO SAVE WOMAN'S TIME

Proper Height of Kitchen Sink and Work Tables Are Important Factors in Cooking.

The height of a woman's kitchen sink and work tables are important factors in her well-being and well-doing. She can't do as much or as good work and feel well and strong with her sink and table so low that she has to bend over to work or so high that she has to "reach up," as she would were they the proper height. As a general rule, 32 to 36 inches from the floor is the height for general work tables and the bottom of the sink should usually be 30 to 31 inches from the floor, the home economics kitchen of the United States department of agriculture suggests. However, each woman ought to find out for herself the height of the table at which she can work most easily and efficiently, and see that her work tables and sink are adjusted accordingly. Legs which are too long can be cut off, and those too short can be raised by blocks under them.

Wash the piano keys with a damp rather than a wet cloth.

If the clothesline is boiled before used, it will not stretch.

Green peppers and olives will lend color to a macaroni salad.

Never clean aluminum with strong soap or scouring powder.

It is best to eat very little and slowly when tired or excited.

When making olive sandwiches put the olives through the meat grinder.

MOLLIE'S BURGLAR

By JACK LAWTON.

(Copyright, 1920, Western Newspaper Union.)

Mollie sat looking ruefully over the moonlit garden, as she braided her hair for the night. Just one month ago all had been "love and roses." At least that had been Mollie's roseate vision of life. And tonight! Shadows and darkness seemed everywhere, like the shaded corners of the garden. And all because of Douglas. What a vast difference "the man" can make in one's life.

Douglas had come, and seen, and conquered—as far as Mollie was concerned. She met him in her home city at a party given by the son of his employer.

Douglas was a favorite with his employer; Douglas was, it seemed, a favorite with everybody. So it was not strange that even little, elusive Mollie should capitulate to his charm. His wooing was prompt and successful.

Mother admired Douglas. Father thought well of him. Mollie's betrothal was a time of jubilation. And then—Douglas urged his visit to mother. He was very fond of his tender little mother Mollie knew, and anxious that she in turn should become fond of the girl chosen of his heart. So Mollie went with Douglas, out on an afternoon train to a dear old, queer old home in the country.

Gorgeous flowers framed the doorways, and inside there were mystery and hints, with steps descending unexpectedly here and there. Mollie's room led from a branching upstairs hall, at the opposite end was the room Douglas had occupied in his childhood, and which was kept unchanged for his frequent visits. Three steps to the right was Faithful's room, and Faithful was the girl who had, innocently enough brought this new heartache to Mollie. Douglas' mother had introduced Faith laughingly that first day of Mollie's arrival, as an old sweetheart of his. And though Douglas later painstakingly explained that the sweethearth had been a joke of pinhead days, the indignation rankled. Jealousy, heretofore an unknown experience with the carefree Mollie, held her now baffled to its power. For while Mollie in secret derided herself for her foolishness, and made firm resolve to pay no attention to the comradeship of Faith and Douglas—no sooner did she come upon the two talking together than Mollie immediately became frigid in demeanor toward her lover, inflicting upon him perplexing hours of unhappiness.

This unfortunate state of affairs had culminated in the present quarrel. Faith had the new temptress Mollie accused her fiancé of unfaithfulness, while he, suffering under this injustice, had taken back silently his ring.

Tride raised between these two an insurmountable barrier. As Mollie turned from the window, she noticed beneath it a man's moving figure and recognized the shuffling outline as a "tramp" whom Douglas' mother had helped on his way with a warm supper.

People were almost too trusting in the country, Mollie thought, as her weary head pressed the pillow. It was in the dead of night that she sat up suddenly in bed, every nerve tremble at the strangeness of her waking. The stealthy sound which had roused her came from the direction of the clothes closet, whose small window opened on a sloping roof. And as Mollie watched, plainly discernible in the moonlight, the white knob of the closet door moved slowly, then was still. She had locked her bedroom door before retiring, and as Mollie stared fascinated, the closet door handle turned again, this time distinctly. With one bound the girl sprang to the door and turned the key. Then, with her heart pounding, Mollie sank to the floor. It was the shuffling tramp, she was sure, who had sought entrance through the roof window. When she could summon her shaking voice, Mollie asked weakly, "Who is there?"

The twice repeated question was answered merely by a renewed and now aggressive rattling of the door handle. The man would force the door presently in defiant strength, she feared. Wildly she reached for an enveloping kimono. Mollie's cold little feet found her slippers, then she opened the bedroom door, and fled straight to that other door at the opposite end of the hall.

"Douglas!" she sobbed. "Oh, Douglas!"

"Coming," he answered with remarkable promptness, and in a few moments, still struggling into his coat, Douglas was at her side.

"Burglars!" Mollie gasped—"in my closet."

"Go down to mother," Douglas commanded her as he ran.

But Mollie waited, huddled in the wide, rose kimono just where Douglas had left her. And when after what seemed hours to Mollie he found her there, Douglas gathered the trembling form close in his arms, while Mollie clung to him in a most reassuring manner.

"It was," Douglas explained, "the cat, Mollie. She had got shut up in your closet; she always works a door handle that way with her paws, when she wants to get out. I am going to buy that cat a collar." Douglas went on jubilantly, "for sending you back to me."

"Blessed excuse!" murmured Mollie; treacherously she smiled her relief.
